PONZI'S $2,000,000 MISSING

VAST SUM PAID 'GET RICH KING' VANISHES

Former "Money Wizard" Bitterly Scored as State Opens Trial of Larceny Charges

Vast Sum Unaccounted for, Says State as Ex-Money Wizard Goes on Trial

Assistant Attorney-General Hurwitz told the jury in opening for the government in the State trial of Charles Ponzi today that the government had "accounted for" $5,318,993.68 when Ponzi's business was stopped in July, 1920.

But Mr. Hurwitz added, $2,000,000 has not been accounted for.

The government will show, the prosecutor also said, that Ponzi was without money in December, 1919, and borrowed $200 to open an office and start the business that rolled up to so many millions.

Ponzi represented to patrons, according to Hurwitz, that he made 100 to 600 per cent. on money invested in the Securities Exchange Company at No. 27 School street and promised investors to pay them 50 per cent. in forty-five days.

Two women and six men were sworn as State witnesses before

$250,000 CHANGE FOR PARK STREET SUBWAY

Rearrangement and addition of loading platform at the Park street subway is being considered by the Boston Elevated Railroad. A new loading and unloading platform 250 to 350 feet in length with entrances and exits on the easterly side of Tremont street is included in the plans. This will necessitate an underground passage which would relieve surface travel across Tremont street between Temple place and Bromfield street. The cost of the improvements is estimated at $250,000.

Philadelphia Youth Under Arrest; Believe Him Assassins Slew Couple

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—Paul Wilson, Jr., twenty-five, of Highland Park, N. J., is being held on suspicion by police here in connection with the murders of Rev. Edw. W. Hall and Mrs. James Mills at New Brunswick, N. J.

"The gang that hung around Taylor's garage, is trying to frame me," he declared, adding that the police had been "riding" him ever since the Hall-Mills mystery.

Wilson was arrested while loitering in Broad street station and taken to City Hall where he was questioned by detectives. He seems afflicted with muscle twitchings and general nervousness which his control and is believed suffering from hallucination.

According to the police who made the arrest, Wilson was acting in a suspicious manner in the station and upon being questioned did not give satisfactory answers.

He is said to have taken a train at New Brunswick with a ticket for Trenton, but rode on to Philadelphia. Wilson is slated as "slick" police headquarters, due to his age of extreme nervous disorder.

The local detectives, however, described his action as significant. He is being held pending advice from the New Brunswick authorities.

BROCKTON RAPS HAVERHILL FOR 'INSULTS' TO FANS

Brockton, Oct. 24.—Brockton is off of Haverhill.

The reason is the treatment accorded 500 visitors from Brockton who went to Haverhill last Saturday to witness the football game between the teams of the Haverhill and Brockton High Schools.

According to charges made by Earle F. Getchell, principal of the Brockton High School, the women in the party were insulted by drunken Haverhill rooters, the school banner was stolen, the seats of the visitors were taken and other indignities were suffered at the hands of the Haverhill rooters.

PROTESTS TREATMENT.

In a letter written today by Principal Earle to Principal Arlington L. Clow, of the Haverhill High School, the Brockton principal wrote.

"As the hours pass my indignation rises at the treatment we received at the hands of the Haverhill High School management on Saturday.

"We urged our pupils to buy tickets for the game in advance, assuming that this would be the only way they could reserve their seats. We made arrangements with our citizens to have our group carried to Haverhill, a distance of sixty miles, and brought a band along. More than 500 pupils bought tickets.

COLD SNAP TO FOLLOW STORM

A severe thunder storm, causing damage in many sections of New England, ushered in a cold wave that is sweeping eastward.

Telephone poles and trees were uprooted in Greater Boston and in Worcester, the lightning crippled telephone service and the city fire alarm system.

Telephone and telegraph communication in other parts of New England was hampered, but not seriously, according to reports received thus far.

Gauges at the weather bureau recorded .75 of an inch rainfall during the storm. That is considered unusual for this time of year.

Weather prophets predict that a thunder storm in October means a long, cold Winter.

CLERK OF BANK HELD IN $15,000

Shortage May Be More Than $10,000 First Charged, Official States

Willis H. Hutchinson, $40-a week bank teller, was arraigned today in Municipal Court before Judge Creed and held for a week in bail of $15,000 on a charge of larceny.

He was arrested at his home in Summit road, Watertown, accused of embezzling $10,000 of the funds of the Exchange Trust Company, where he was employed.

Auditors at work on his accounts reported today that a shortage to that amount had been found in Hutchinson's cash account alone.

Fred J. Monroe, treasurer of the bank, said:

LUCKY IN STOCKS.

"I am afraid a complete audit of Hutchinson's accounts may show that he took many times $10,000. Of course that cannot be known until the audit is finished. There is a possibility that he replaced much of the money that was taken. He was very fortunate in some of his stock gambles."

The discovery of the teller's theft came about through his using his father's account in stock specula-

DECLARES GENERAL HOLIDAY

Cup Contest Expected Tomorrow Despite Ford's Withdrawal

Gloucester, Oct. 24 (By the Associated Press).—The Gloucesterman Henry Ford today definitely withdrew from the racing for the international fishing schooner championship of the North Atlantic.

Captain Clayton Morrissey, asserting that his boat and his men had already won the two races from the Canadian champion Bluenose necessary for the possession of the title trophy, put pigiron ballast aboard preparatory to going fishing.

HOLIDAY ORDERED.

Gloucester, however, showed a hope that racing would be resumed tomorrow by declaring it a holiday with all the retail stores closed.

Race officials provided for a continuation of the contest by announcing the Canadian destroyer Patriot would take her post at the start as the official boat with the committee on board.

The Bluenose would be out there prepared to race, Captain Walters said.

GLOUCESTER EXPECTS RACE TOMORROW; DECLARES IT A HOLIDAY

member of the international committee and part owner of the Ford, spent the day trying to round up Captain Morrissey and his men for a dinner at the Raymond home tonight with a view of having them consider again completion of the series.

The method by which Captain Morrissey's act in putting ballast aboard with the intention of fishing, thus violating the conditions of the contest if it is to be resumed, might be met, was a subject of speculation. Remeasurement of the vessel might solve it.

The Nova Scotian delegation let it be known today that at last night's meeting of the International Committee, when they offered to hand over the cup to the Henry Ford "if it were acceptable in that way," four American committeemen present jumped to their feet and said they didn't want it that way, and that they still expected to win it without a flaw.

ELIMINATES BOAT.

By his act in putting ballast aboard Captain Morrissey, under the conditions of the deed of gift, automatically eliminated his vessel from the series. The deed of gift provision reads:

"No ballast shall be taken off or put on the competing vessels during the series."

A further sentence provides that if any ballast is shifted there may be a remeasurement, but committee members said this was no shifting. It was an addition.

Captain Morrissey in this act of withdrawal relinquished claim not only to the cup but to at least $2,000 and possibly $3,000 of prize money. These sums, respectively, were the loser's and winner's shares.

"It has cost me and my men enough already so that the matter of a few thousand dollars does not count against the principle involved," Captain Morrissey said when questioned as to the probable disposition of the purse.

On the deck of the Henry Ford, while supervising the storage of the pig iron and rock ballast, Morrissey talked race with his first cousin, Captain Henry J. Larkin, skipper of the Mayflower. They had an agreement to meet after the cup series if Morrissey was the winner.

MAY RACE MAYFLOWER.

The Ford's skipper said today that he wanted to go fishing as soon as possible, pointing to the dories on the dock and saying that he wanted to get them aboard and to work again, but that if Larkin insisted there might be a race with the Mayflower only.

The Mayflower, sailing over the course covered by the racing schooners yesterday, showed a speed on the first two legs so far surpassing that of the Henry Ford and the Bluenose that there was no question of her supremacy under the prevailing conditions.

sister-in-law, had identified the body as that of Mooney.

The man in question was found in the rear of No. 541 Main street Charlestown, unconscious, Saturday. He died later at Relief Hospital.

MOURNED BY RELATIVES.

Relatives and friends were mourning the "deceased" when John Mooney walked by Station 15, Charlestown, where he has been known to a number of police officials for many years.

"You've been identified as dead," shouted Patrolman Scanlon, and he and Mooney walked inside to interview Captain Michael Goff.

Dobbin was summoned from Mooney's house. As he saw Mooney he nearly collapsed and cried, "Man, you're dead."

REBUFFED AT BANKS.

Convinced he was wrong Dobbin and his brother-in-law started for the morgue. Mooney stopped at a Tremont street bank to draw some money. The teller refused payment, exhibiting a stop order from the medical examiner. Patrolman Eugene Sullivan was called to quell the disturbance.

At City Hall avenue station the affair was explained. Dobbin and Mooney again started for the morgue and Mooney started to draw money at another bank. Again he was refused and Patrolman Sullivan had to be called before the visit to the morgue could be made.

WOMAN SLASHES TWO OTHERS IN WEST END ROW

A love tangle lead to the slashing of two women by Mrs. Camilla Falcone of No. 78 Green street, West End, in sight of many spectators at Staniford and Merrimac streets, West End.

Mrs. Rose Parchillo, thirty-two, her throat cut from ear to ear, is lying at Haymarket Relief Hospital.

Mrs. Edna K. Williams, cause of the cutting, is seriously slashed about the face. Both women live at No. 32 Lowell street, West End.

Police said Mrs. Falcone met the two women and began hurling abuse at Mrs. Williams. All three became involved in argument.

Suddenly Mrs. Falcone took a razor from the folds of her dress and drew it swiftly across Mrs. Williams' face. Mrs. Porchillo tried to protect her friend, and the infuriated woman turned on her.

Screams of the wounded drew a crowd and police as the assailant fled to a nearby barber shop and thence to the wash room, where she was found cowering by arresting officers.

Neighbors told police that ill feeling had existed between Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Falcone because of a man.

Mrs. Falconi was arraigned before Judge Duff and her case put over until Nov. 8. Bail was fixed at $20,000. The woman was taken to Relief Hospital by Inspector James Deneassey to be identified by the two victims of the slashing, but physicians stated the women were too weak to see her.

Mrs. Falconi begged to be taken in to see Mrs. Parchillo. At the woman's beside, she told Mrs. Parchillo that she did not mean to slash anyone except Mrs. Williams, but lost her head in the excitement.

SEIZE STILLS, ARREST THREE IN CHELSEA

Raiding officers today seized three 150-gallon and one 100-gallon stills in operation, 215 gallons of moonshine and 147 barrels of mash in a spectacular raid on a barn in the rear of No. 94 Elm street, Chelsea.

Three men were arrested. They are: Joseph Alpert of Elm street, Chelsea; Mitchell Berley of Elm street and Jacob Berkowitz of Maverick street, Chelsea.

The raiders, lead by Gordon P. McMasters, jumped from an automobile, surrounded the barn and burst in as a score or more excited women set up a howl outside, fearing the officers were bandits.

Inside, the dry agents say, were Berley and Berkowitz.

The equipment seized constitutes the third largest ever taken in New England, and, the authorities say, was one of the chief sources of the flood of moonsh ne which has been inundating Boston.

Other arrests are expected.

TWO MILLIONS OF PONZI CASH MISSING

Hurwitz opened. One of the women is Miss Lucy Meli of No. 73 Temple street, Revere, former secretary to Ponzi.

Ponzi, who is brought up from Plymouth Jail under guard in an automobile for the State court sessions, brought so many books and papers to use in his self-conducted defence today that the service of a deputy was needd to hip him lug in this data.

Mrs. Ponzi was not in court when the case was resumed today. It was assumed that she would be on hand later.

Judge Fosdick, presiding in the fourth session of Suffolk Superior Criminal Court, gave further warning to jurors. He said:

"Much will be published about this trial. You must not be influenced by newspaper articles. The newspaper accounts may be used by you for interest or amusement, but they have nothing to do with your judgment. You must try this case strictly on the evidence introduced in the courtroom and on nothing else."

HURWITZ OUTLINES CASE.

Ponzi is charged with larceny and being accessory to larceny.

Indicted with Ponzi for conspiracy to defraud investors in the Securities Exchange Company are five alleged agents, John S. Dondero, John A. Dondero, Harry Mahoney, Henry T. Nielsen and Rinaldi Roselli. These five are also charged in one indictment each with larceny and being accessory to larceny.

Assistant Attorney-General Hurwitz explained, in beginning his opening to the jury, that Ponzi claimed he was conducting a business in international reply coupons which netted him such tremendous profits that he was able to pay this high rate of interest, 50 per cent. in forty-five days. The prosecutor went on:

"You have heard read by the clerk twelve indictments. In one of these Ponzi and the five agents on trial here with him are charged with conspiracy to commit larceny. The government claims that they stole the money from divers persons. In other indictments Ponzi is charged with stealing sums ranging from $50 to $2,800 and his agents are charged jointly with him with larceny.

"The government will show that, in August, 1919, Ponzi was engaged in some sort of importing business on Nos. 27 School street. We will show that he received a letter from Spain containing one international reply coupon. This coupon, will be offered in evidence."

Mr. Hurwitz then explained that a number of representative governments of the world had entered into agreement for exchange of international reply coupons which could be exchanged for postage stamps. Headquarters were at Berne, Switzerland, and the United States was a party to this plan.

PROMISED 50 P. C. PROFIT.

The prosecutor said that Ponzi, on receiving coupons from Spain, conceived the idea of dealing in international reply coupons. He conceived the idea of buying up coupons in countries where exchange was low and exchanging them for postage stamps in countries where exchange was high and, on the profits, paying large interest to investors.

"The Government will show," Hurwitz proceeded, " that in December, 1919, Ponzi was without funds and borrowed $200 to open an office and start this business. A certificate filed by Ponzi at City Hall showed that he was conducting the business.

"The government will show that in February, 1920, the defendant, John S. Dondero, entered partnership with Ponzi, and that both represented to the public that Ponzi was carrying on an international reply coupon business and making a profit of between 800 and 400 per cent; also were guaranteeing investors fifty per cent profit on their investments in ninety days; that later the defendant agents on trial with him became his mouthpieces, verbally advertised the scheme and, in order to develop business, represented that fifty per cent would be paid in forty-five days instead of ninety."

Continuing his opening Assistant Attorney-General Hurwitz said that in addition to the office at No. 27 School street there were two branches in other cities.

"In April of 1920," he said, "the government will show that Ponzi transferred $61,000 lire to a bank in Italy. In consequence of the misrepresentations on the part of Ponzi and his agents, there was received in actual money $9,582,281.82. Of this amount there was paid back to some investors either the original sums of the original sums plus 40 or 50 per cent, interest making a total of $5,318,993.08.

"The government will show that Ponzi's assets August 13, 1920, when he said they represented twice his liabilities, were in fact less than $2,000,000 and his liabilities were more than $8,000,000. We will show that he bought a house and shares in banking corporations all amounting to several hundred thousands of dollars. His agent, Henry Mahoney, received $15,000 in commissions and Boscelli $10,000, the government will show."

CLERK OF BANK HELD IN BAIL OF $15,000

tions in the State street brokerage office of Spencer Trask & Co.

For years the elder Hutchinson had an account with the firm, but he was notably conservative in his deals, purchasing only investment bonds. Of late months the brokerage firm noticed that Mr. Hutchinson was dealing in speculative stocks and doing what he had never done before—buying and selling on ten-point margin.

On these deals the account at one period reached the sum of $150,000.

A representative of the brokerage firm called on the bank when it was found that young Hutchinson was trading in his father's account. A secret audit was made and the $15,000 shortage discovered.

Hutchinson was arrested while his wife was at a theatre. Only a month ago Walter T. Doyle, auditor of the Exchange Trust Company, was arrested on a charge of stealing over $15,000 from the bank. Like Hutchinson, Doyle used the funds to gamble in the stock market. Doyle is now out on bail pending a trial.

"Hutchinson, I understand, has practically admitted the theft of $10,000," Treasurer Monroe said. "I cannot say whether or not the bank will permit him to make restitution and drop charges until we find out whether his shortage is larger than $10,000, as we expect it may be."

One of the partners of the brokerage firm through which Hutchinson dealt said that he had made large profits, large enough to make good several times the alleged shortage. This is a mysterious phase of the situation—the fact that Hutchinson appears to have won many times the amount he is charged with stealing.

This may account for his lack of perturbation when he was arraigned today, and for the calmness exhibited by his wife. She said she would be able to arrange for bail during the day.

Immediately after the court session, the Choquettes left, via pony cart, for Rhode Island. Choquette had been acquitted of kidnaping the child.

Lo! the Poor Chimpanzee You'll See Ford Run Best for Englishmen You May Kill—If

Now will come a howl from the anti-vivisectionists and all friends of dumb brutes."

And as for William Jennings Bryan, there is no knowing what he will say about the Paris Pasteur Institute establishing a monkey reservation in the heart of Africa to raise chimpanzees for scientific experiment.

Certain human diseases can be planted in no animal body except our own or that of our little chimpansee brother—notice that hideous fact, Mr. Bryan. When the natives catch young chimpanzees they kill its father and mother and those "primate" are dying out. The Paris Pasteur Institute will breed them on a big scale to enrich science.

That announcement will shock gentlemen owning millions that are nothing but gigantic preserves in which human beings are specially bred to be used by dividend makers as the chimpanzees will be used for the Pasteur Institute.

The chimpanzee mother hates to think that her child will go to Dr. Voronoff, to have his little glands sold to a Chicago millionaire. That chimpanzee mother can sympathize with American mothers that have sent their children to the mills before daylight. The little chimpanzee's sufferings are soon over. That's the difference.

One thing seems quite sure. Henry Ford means to run for President next time on the Democratic ticket. When asked about it he says, "that is on the lap of the gods." With Ford running, with his fifteen thousand agents in every town ready, with h hundred and fifty millions a year also ready to do whatever money can do, you will see some activity among Wall street gentlemen. With their lanterns out, they will be earnestly hunting for something that LOOKS like a radical but hasn't any teeth.

If they put up that kind of a radical, and if Mr. Ford's managers have the intelligence of a microcephalic prairie dog, Ford will be elected, and try to hand Wall street "something just as good" in place of old-fashioned money.

Fine for the British Empire, and for common sense government in Europe if Lloyd George should be elected back to power. And it looks now as though he might be, in spite of the average dull longing for a change.

For Englishmen, just now, the best possible thing might be Lloyd George out of power. For out of power the world would see Lloyd George as the out and out radical that he is, not as hitherto, compromising, conceding, driving the Tory land owners tandem with British labor.

H. G. Wells, in England, said the other day, "England needs a man like W. R. Hearst to stir up

Charged With Theft of Typewriters at Dedham High and Taking Auto

Two Dedham High School students—Ralph G. Lent, seventeen, of West Roxbury, and George Malloof, eighteen, of Coluburn street, Dedham—were arrested today on charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

Chief of Police Shine alleges they broke into the high school the night of October 9 and stole four typewriters and a mimeograph machine, which they later sold in Boston for $125. They are also accused of breaking into the garage of Max Hartman, Park street, Dedham, and taking an automobile, later found in a garage said to have been hired by the boys.

HARDING TO BACK DR. SAWYER

Washington, Oct. 24 (By International News Service). — President Harding is eminently satisfied with the work done by General Charles E. Sawyer, his personal physician, as chief co-ordinator of the Federal hospitalization board, and has no intention of supplanting him in that office, it was officially announced at the White House this afternoon.

The President will ignore the charges of inefficiency brought against Sawyer by the American Legion, which culminated in the legion's convention at New Orleans last week in a resolution being passed.

UNWRITTEN LAW MRS. PHILLIPS' DEFENCE

Los Angeles, Oct. 24.—A double defence of "psychic epilepsy" and the unwritten law is planned for Mrs. Clara Phillips, on trial for the murder of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, who was beaten to death with a hammer, her chief counsel, Bertram Perrington, said today. It was intimated that the use of the unwritten law plea would bring to the witness stand Mrs. Phillips' husband, Armour Phillips, to be questioned concerning his acquaintance with Mrs. Meadows, who was a widow. Efforts to obtain a jury proceeded today.

GREENE DEMURRERS GOING TO FULL BENCH

Judge De Courcy in the Superior Criminal Court today announced he would reserve for the full bench the determination of demurrers filed by the defense in the suit of Mrs. Theresa I. Spear and others against the Henry V. Greene Co. and associated enterprises. The suit is to recover $14,000,000 for investors. If the demurrers are sustained by the full bench it will mean that the bill will be dismissed. If they are not sustained a hearing will be had on the facts, in the near future.

W. S. HART SITS UP; OUT AGAIN IN MONTH

Los Angeles, Oct. 24.—William S. Hart sat up for the first time since the attack of illness which a month ago threatened his life. Announcement was made to this effect by his attending physician, who added that his patient, probably, again would be able to give his attention to business within a month.

HUMANE LANDLORD SOUGHT BY FAMILY OF EIGHT

Is there a landlord in Greater Boston who has a heart and a tenement that he will open to a widow with her eight small children?

—Daisy A. Brown of No. 72

WIDOWED SOMERVILLE MOTHER, FAMILY AND MAN WHO SAVED THEM FROM EVICTION

On left is Thomas G. Washburn of the Back Bay, who read of the plight of Mrs. Daisy A. Brown, who, threatened with eviction, was unable to find a landlord who would accept her family of eight children. In the background is the house at No. 72 Wheatland street, Somerville, from which the Browns were to be ejected, until "Tom" was said today, will be presented to Mayor Curley when he returns from his vacation in the South.

Commissioner Rourke's report brought about the resignation of Water Department Commissioner Wilson some time ago.

The report says in part:

DISCLOSURES IN REPORT.

"Recent investigations have disclosed facts which show that the income branch of the water division of the public works department, under Robert W. Wilson, has been very inefficiently administered.

"They show that the high-priced clerks are careless in their work; that abatements are made for little or no defensible cause by certain clerks without the approval of a responsible officer.

"They show that summonses are waived in the same manner; that money was collected and held illegally and that postdated checks were held for no other possible reason than the favoring of an individual.

LAXITY AND NEGLIGENCE.

"They show there was extreme laxity and perhaps criminal negligence in the use of the shutoff to insure payment of accounts; that when property changed hands collections of bills due from old owners were not placed with the law department.

"They show that the superintendent was grossly inefficient and negligent in the discharge of his duties"

Washburn enlisted the sympathy of some of his friends and purchased the property. Upper inset shows the youngest of Mrs. Brown's brood, which she is also seen holding in her lap in the group picture. Below is a reproduction, in part, of the story of the widow's plight as printed by the American on September 19 last.

6 WOMEN PICKET WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Oct. 24.—Picketing of the White House grounds as a protest against continued imprisonment of violators of war time laws was renewed today by the Joint Amnesty Committee, representing the Maryland Civil Liberties Union, the Pennsylvania Committee for the release of Political Prisoners and the American Civil Liberties' Union. Six women appeared at the gates about the time the cabinet convened, all of the picketers bearing banners urging the release of those convicted for war time offenses.

COFFEE POT KILLS MAN, $25,000 ASKED

Frank P. Chisholm seeks $25,000 from the New York Central Railroad on the ground that his stepfather, Mathew McTier, colored cook in the road's dining car service, died from injury received when a coffee pot fell on his head while one of the company cars was being shifted at Valley Field, Province of Quebec.

Chisholm is administrator of McTier's estate.

Trial of the suit began before Judge Brewster and jury in the Federal District Court here today. Two doctors testified to opinion that McTier's death was due to the coffee pot having hit his head three weeks before.

Back Bay Man and Friends Purchase House to Prevent Family From Being Ejected

Now it can be told.

Santa Claus—functioning a bit ahead of time—stands revealed. He is, in this case, at least, Thomas G. Washburn of No. 137 St. Mary's street, Back Bay.

Considerably against his wishes in the matter Mr. Washburn is confessed as a man who provided a home for Mrs. Daisy Brown of No. 72 Wheatland street, Somerville, a widow with eight children, the youngest a baby in arms.

HUSBAND DIED SUDDENLY.

William Brown, husband and father, died suddenly a year ago, leaving his widow and seven children and a baby coming.

Then the home they had been occupying in Wheatland street was sold and the widow was notified last August to move. Hardly up from sick bed and terrified at the possibility of being put in the street, Mrs. Brown searched in vain for a new landlord who would "suffer little children" to come into his property. None such was found.

Mrs. Brown's plight became neighborhood talk and the tale was printed in the Boston American.

Enter "Tom" Washburn, big-hearted. He sought the American for details. He asked for secrecy. He investigated. He and good friends bought the Brown house outright. Meanwhile Mrs. Brown had been looking at a place she thought she might get. Then—but let her tell it:

"Imagine my surprise when I was told not to take this other place—it was not good enough, I was told. Then I was instructed to unpack all my goods and stay where I was. The next day carpenters came and paperhangers and electric light men. They stepped right in and—."

Mrs. Brown was too overcome to say any more just then. But the renovation brigade went through the house from top to bottom. They made it like new. They even put in a new gas stove and hot water heater.

"I can't believe it all," says the bewildered mother.

$400 VANISHES, HIRED MAN GONE

Timothy French was hired to work for John Johnson at No. 286 Fenno street, Revere. Today when Johnson returned from his milk route he found his desk pried open and $400 missing. Investigation showed that Tim was also missing. The police of Boston and Revere have been asked to locate Timothy, who is about sixty-five years old.

EXTENDS EBERT'S TERM TO JUNE, 1925

Berlin, Oct. 24. (By International News Service).—The German Reichstag, by a vote of 314 to 76 today passed a law extending the term of President Frederich Ebert until June, 1925. This means that there will be no presidential election in Germany for nearly three years.

BOBBED-HAIRED GIRL MAKES FIFTH SOUL MATE AT COOP

By THE FLAPPER

(Caryl Fink)

When Charles Garland entered the "Chicken Coop" he greeted everybody pleasantly, but without change of expression.

Then, arranging himself comfortably on the hard board floor, he turned his attention to the cranberries.

"There's the best cranberries on the Cape," he remarked, running his fingers through the heaps of berries. "Seven-eighths of the cranberries used by this country are grown right around North Carver. Or maybe it's six-sevenths."

I had expected the extraordinary Charles, the man who had aroused the interest of a whole country with his strange ideas, to talk of something weightier than cranberries. Later that evening he did, but now he eased himself to his feet and "allowed as" he'd have to go out and get to work.

GARLAND HAULS ROCKS.

From the window of the coop I watched young Garland at his farming. He tore the rocks from the soil, lifting great heavy ones with his long brown arms, and piling them on a board he had hitched behind his tractor. Then he rode with them to the edge of the clearing and dumped them. He repeated this operation endlessly. Clearing the Garland thirty acres reminds one of a colony of ants keeping busy at their life work.

Alice had finished the cranberries and was cooking oatmeal at the small wood-burning cook stove.

"Oh, can we have some for our supper?" asked Anna. "I'm starved."

"It's for the calf," answered Alice. And she took the steaming pot out to the shed.

When she returned I asked her if there wasn't something I could do to help. Everybody seemed continually to be working at something and I felt very unproductive just reading poems.

NO CLOTH FOR TABLE.

"Thee may set the table," answered Alice.

The only table in the room was a small wooden one such as one expects to find in undersized kitchens.

"Where is the cloth?" I asked.

"There isn't any," said Alice.

I looked about me for the dishes and saw them stacked in the eaves of the coop. When I had set five places—Sam had left for his own farm, which borders the Garland farm—I asked Alice if everything was all right.

She smiled and removed half of the dishes I had put on the table. That was my first hint that the Garland gang eats small store by food.

As the supper hour approached I wondered why nobody thought to put anything on the stove to cook. Alice had placed a black loaf and a knife on a board at Garland's plate and beside it a tall pitcher of milk. Then she called everybody to supper.

EAT BY CANDLE LIGHT.

Doris came in with the milk pails. She had been "separating." Barley came in and lit two candles in brass holders, which he placed on the table. It had grown quite dark outside.

Doris sat on a bench and Garland came and sat beside her. I sat with Anna on the couch.

The meal started with shredded wheat and ended with cranberries and black bread. And that was all. There was plenty to eat if you liked what there was. I gathered from conversation at supper that Garland and his girl disciples believe in eating only what they produce on the farm.

Over the stove a cheesecloth bag containing perhaps two pounds of beans have been hung to dry. I asked if they had been raised on the farm.

"Yes," said Barley, "and we really ought to have more. But we very foolishly ate them while they were green, during the Summer, never thinking that we'd need them in the Winter."

I remembered the pathetic rows of half-hearted carrots, beets, and squashes; the half-portion pumpkins, and the rather gnarled potatoes I had seen on the farm, and felt sorry for the "questers." It began to look like a hard Winter.

DISCIPLES GET SCARE

After a year of endless work the Garland farmers have produced scarcely enough for a single load on a North-End pushcart.

I finished one slice of bread and looked around foolishly, fearful of doing an Oliver Twist in asking for more.

Presently Barley cut a slice and handed it to me on the knife. He seemed to make a ceremony of the simple, homely gesture.

While we were eating a motor drove up outside the door. Every-

HONESTY, INTEGRITY, APPLICATION AND SINCERITY

In reply to the question as to what he had to say to young folks, and older ones, too, about getting, keeping and improving their work, Dr. Frank Crane, whose writings are very widely read throughout the world, said in an interview:

DR. FRANK CRANE

"The problem is a very complicated one and yet a very simple one. For the problem involves life itself. And while life is the most complex thing in the world, it is, at the same time, very simple.

"What I mean is that there are no new and fancy rules for success or for doing good work.

"The only dependable rules are the old ones.

"Honesty, integrity, application and sincerity — no better means than these have ever been discovered by any member of the human race for making a success of life.

"The longer we reflect upon this problem and the maturer our judgment is, the more we come back to these simple things.

"To be sincere, to have faith, and above all things, to have courage—this is the good old way to get to any place that is worth getting to.

FILM CENSORSHIP BILL IS REPUDIATED BY ITS OWN FATHER

Springfield, Oct. 24.—Senator George D. Chamberlain of Springfield, father of the Movie Censorship bill, has repudiated his own child.

This sensational action on the part of the man who propagandized in favor of the law when it was pending in the Senate and whose action was inspired and promoted by E. Preston Clark, has issued a statement in which he condemns the idea of a one-man censorship.

Senator Chamberlain.

Since the law was passed, Mr. Chamberlain admits, he has gotten more light on the subject and he is seriously afraid of the consequences of its enforcement.

In a statement to the Springfield Republican he admits doubting the wisdom of his own action in sponsoring the bill.

To the host of liberal voters throughout the State who realize the danger to free institutions contained in the bill, the change in the stand of Senator Chamberlain is welcome news.

OPEN TO PREJUDICE.

In his statement the Senator declared that the delegating of autocratic power to a film censor who, in common with other human beings is open to prejudice, now appears in a different light. With such a power, censor Hiss man who led the fight for the bill without realizing its insidious provisions, the most honest State film arbiter might allow a bad picture and prevent the showing of a masterpiece, knowing that from his decision there could be no redress.

Senator Chamberlain is still in favor of any movement which will tend to prevent the showing of questionable pictures, but it must be one which does not interfere with fundamental, constitutional liberties as does the present State Censorship Bill which may be defeated by "NO" vote on the election day referendums.

Mr. Clark and his associates have expressed themselves in no uncertain terms as to the reliability of Senator Chamberlain and Senator Chamberlain's views.

The question now arises in the minds of the friends of Mr. Chamberlain as to whether Mr. Clark and his associates will follow him in the changed attitude he has adopted.

ARBITRARY POWERS.

Hidden deep in the proposed censorship bill is one section that carries, in its lines, the real "teeth" of this legislation. For this section gives the censor authority to make "such rules and regulations" as may be necessary to enforce the act.

Section 58, Chapter 431 reads:

Subject to the approval of the Governor and Council the commissioner (censor) shall make and enforce such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of Sections 57 to 58 inclusive."

So that, after the censor gets into office, he can do about as he wishes in the matter of making even more rigid rules than those in the original bill.

Here is what some of those in the Boston American latter contest have to say in the matter:

"IS NO EXCUSE."

Editor Boston American:

Censorship of motion pictures is a colossal example of stupidity.

Ohio censors objected to Stevenson's "Treasure Island" because it might teach children piracy.

The scenes in Charlie Chaplin's "The Kid" where Jackie Coogan smashed windows was cut out by Illinois censors who considered innocent child's play harmful to youthful audiences.

Unless you want to be fed on predigested mush, and unless you, as an American citizen, want to be deprived of your rights, vote "No."

ROBERT E. HARRELL.
No. 1336 Commonwealth avenue, Allston.

GIVES TEN REASONS.

Editor Boston American:

Movie censorship should be opposed for the following reasons:

1.—It is un-American in that it encroaches upon the individual's rights.

2.—Too many laws do not make a people happy, but restless.

3.—It creates unnecessary expenditures at a time when the mounting cost of government is very formidable.

4.—Such a law might mean an increase in admission fees, which would bar many from attending the only amusement they can now afford.

5.—No valid objections can be held against the present efficient system of supervision.

6.—Politicians can easily abuse this power of censorship to further their own ends.

7.—Only a negligible minority really favors such a law.

8.—The movie producers, themselves, have shown their intention to maintain a high, creditable standard of pictures by appointing Will Hays as a general supervisor.

9.—Such a law casts undue reflections upon the entire industry and profession.

10.—Such a law is far more insidious and far-reaching in its effects than we realize at first sight.

Girls! Wear Smaller Shoes and Wear More Comfort. You Can.

The Magic Touch of Ice-Mint Does It.

This winter girls will be wearing smaller and prettier shoes than ever.

Thanks to a new discovery called Ice-Mint foot troubles will soon be a thing of the past.

Ice-Mint is a clean, snow-white creamy preparation made from pure liquefied mint, camphor and menthol. It instantly cools, soothes and relieves tired, aching, burning feet, reduces the swelling and enables one to wear shoes a size or two smaller with ease and comfort.

It takes the sting out of painful corns, callouses and bunions so quickly that you will just sigh with relief.

Oh! how good it feels! What wonderful relief! Ice-Mint is a joy forever to those who are obliged to stand on their feet all day. Just rub on a few of Ice-Mint at night and instantly the feet feel most comfortable and rested. It makes a new pair-son out of a grouch, foot sufferer in just two minutes by the clock.

No more puffy, swollen, sore-aching feet. No more foot trouble. Ice-Mint will bring you the foot comfort you have longed for. And enables you to wear smaller shoes and be more comfy. Ice-Mint costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere. There is nothing better.

QUEER FEELINGS AT MIDDLE AGE

Women Should Know how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps at This Trying Period

Sheboygan, Wisconsin.—"I was run down, tired and nervous. I could not even do my own housework, would not sleep at night and all kinds of queer thoughts would come to me. Finally I gave up going to the doctor and a friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After the first bottle I could sleep better and I have gained 40 pounds and am improving ever since. I have taken seven bottles now and am so happy that I am all over these bad feelings."—Mrs. B. LANSER, 1639 N. 3rd St., Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

For the woman entering middle age Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can be of much benefit. During this time of life certain changes take place which sometimes develop into serious trouble.

Melancholy, nervousness, irritability, headache and dizziness are some of the symptoms. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a natural restorative, especially adapted to assist nature in carrying you safely past this time. Why not give it a fair trial?

the people and make them think."

Such a man England will have in Lloyd George when the load of office is taken off his back. Every nation needs a radical not afraid of tradition, or of aristocratic, or financial power.

George Harlow, finding his wife, nineteen years old, with another man, beat her to death with a club. A California jury says "justifiable homicide."

A young woman with a sad face and a very young baby, went to her husband's office, killed him and his stenographer. It was decided that she might bring her baby into court with her. That settles that case, probably. When the jury sees the baby it will say "Not guilty."

All this may seem too mild, too much like setting the law aside in honor of jealousy. But laws and juries don't rule or direct civilization, they REFLECT it. Constitution, laws, newspapers, sermons, crimes, philanthropy—all make up a complex mirror, reflecting mankind at the moment.

Somebody caught a young duck at its breeding place in Maine and put a band on its leg. That same bird was found paddling around the mouth of the Niger, in Africa. Birds fly away thousands of miles and return to the same State, the same farm, the same field. How do they do it? Scientists are trying to find out.

It is interesting to know that before long the small boy will be able to leave his "breeding ground" in Maine and also fly to the mouth of the Niger, or the Amazon, or to the fair at Novgorod if he chooses.

PEGGY BEAL IS SET FREE BY JURORS

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 24.—After three hours of deliberation a jury acquitted Marie "Peggy" Beal of the murder of R. Warren Anderson, Philadelphia and Kansas City club man.

"Peggy," bobbed, diminutive, tearfilling her flashing black eyes, told her story of unwise love with a veritable "Sheik," to the jury. "I killed to save other young girls," she said. "But I was insane. I do not recall firing the shot."

The State attempted to prove that Anderson was shot in the back while asleep.

Peggy Beal met Anderson in a flirtation. Meeting they loved—she in her heart she said, while he bu-professed his affection. She gave herself to him, even after he had confessed that his invalid wife had not divorced him.

By evidence the State showed that a copy of "Thuvia"—Edgar Rice Burroughs' novel—lay beside the body of Anderson. It was opened at the page where a picture showed "Thuvia" bending over her slain lover, a blood dripping dagger in her hand.

"Peggy" Beal's defence was a vindication of a woman's right to slay "a sheik lover"—a man who made all women bend to his will.

Many times she broke down weeping as she told of their one-time love and of the actual killing.

She denied that Anderson was asleep.

PROVIDENCE WOMAN LOST SIX DAYS, DIES

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 24.—Dr. Adelaide Hunt, seventy-eight, of Providence, R. I., died today as the result of sufferings when lost in the mountains nearby. Dr. Hunt was visiting relatives and started for a walk in the mountains and was unable to find her way back. Police and citizens discovered her in the brush after having been lost for six days.

HOLD MAN ON CHARGE OF BEATING WOMAN

Fitzgerald for Wine and Beer

Hyannis, Oct. 24.—John F. Fitzgerald, Democratic candidate for Governor, came out flat footed in favor of light wines and beers.

He declared himself avowedly opposed to the acceptance of the Volstead act by the State electorate and declared that a law, such as the Volstead act, which prohibition enforcement officers admit they cannot enforce, has no place on the statute books.

He challenged Governor Cox to announce his stand on the liquor question.

"Are you in favor of a liberalization of the Volstead act or are you in favor of a continuance of the present unjust and discriminating state of affairs which has led to an indifference to law and order, corruption of police departments and increase in crime?" he asked.

G. O. P. CONTROL ATTACKED BY FITZGERALD

Middleboro, Oct. 24.—Speaking before crowds in the industrial towns in the Cape district, John F. Fitzgerald, Democratic candidate for Governor, scored the Boston Chamber of Commerce for its failure to develop foreign trade.

The Chamber's "apathetic attitude toward the improvement of port conditions and the loss of shipping to New England" he blamed to "Republican control and inertia."

He arraigned Governor Cox for his appointment of three millionaires —Storrow, Phelan and Ratshesky—to membership on the Coal Commission.

"The coal problem is your problem," Mr. Fitzgerald said, "but do you find an artisan, farmer or one of the common people on that board? No indeed. The Coal Commission represents a class which represents only 160th of 1 per cent of the State's population."

He will arrive in Boston early tomorrow, when he will be in conference with all the Democratic leaders on the details of the campaign. He will then continue his tour and between the noon hour and midnight, he will address fourteen different rallies. His schedule for tomorrow is as follows:

DAY'S SCHEDULE.

12:30—Beverly, at the United Shoe Machinery plant.

Green Edition Aids Eyes, By Avoiding Dangerous Rays in Spectrum

YOU are working with nature if you read the Boston American Green Edition.

Nature, in fact, intended you to read from green tinted paper. Read what Dr. M. Sumstead, registered optometrist with Frank A. Andrews on Washington Street, says about it:

Dr. M. Sumstead

"Reflected green rays are midway in the spectrum. They are accordingly farthest from the injurious rays that lie to either side of the visible rays.

"Infra-red rays, one of these injurious rays, have been proved to be an exciting cause of cataract, the most dreaded eye disease. A certain tribe of religious fanatics, who believe they have seen enough when they have beheld the idol they worship, bring on blindness by glaring steadfastly at red hot coals. These coals give off the infra-red rays, and ultimately cause blindness.

"The muscles work easier and longer without tiring when the nerves are not being shocked by glaring and injurious rays such as are reflected by white paper.

"In creating the Universe, the Almighty selected green as the most beneficial to mankind. The Boston American has done well to adopt it."

GARLAND GOES SHY ON FOOD

body seemed to grow tense and eyes that seemed strangely uncovered in the candle-light flashed in one another.

The threat of the Ku Klux Klan ran through my mind, and I thought I read poison fright in the faces of the others.

There was a knock at the door.

"Come in," spoke Alice.

The door flew open, and a very pretty and friendly face fringed with straight short hair came within range of the candle flame.

"Harry!" they all called at once.

NOW FIVE GIRLS THERE.

A slim, dark-skinned girl of about twenty entered the room. She wore the khaki knickers of the others, a silk blouse with mannish tie, and a short sleeveless leather coat. She sat down at the table and tore into a piece of black bread.

"Has thee written any new poems?" asked Alice.

"No," said Harry. "But I've written a book. Knopf is going to publish it. Please pass the cranberries."

"How've you been, Harry?" asked Doris.

"Fine," said the new girl. "What do you think of Harding's policy?"

"What is it?" asked Doris. "We never get a newspaper out here."

Harriet launched into a spirited discussion of Harding, touching on all the weak spots of the administration as she saw them.

"Harding," said Barley, rousing from a long silence, "is no different from the merest Caps Cad consible. He's only an office-holder. Anybody want any more bread? Have you seen any materialisations lately, Harry?"

"Yes!" cried the girl. "Oh, wonderful ones. I'll tell you all about them after while."

During the evening I learned that "Harry" had just housed in from Mexico after an absence of perhaps half a year. She asked Barley if she might use "Mary's" shack, and he nodded. (Mary is Garland's wife (the mother of his two babies.) I liked Harry, the way I liked the shredded wheat—and the feeling was instantly mutual. She was not at all like the others. There were now five girls on the farm.

Springfield, Oct. 24.—W. J. Potts, Boston & Albany locomotive engineer, is dying at Springfield Hospital with a fracture of the skull, suffered when he was struck by a switching engine as he leaned from the cab of his own engine, between Palmer and Brookfield early today.

New Freight Service

The Cunard Steamship Company today announced that, beginning December 2, the freight steamers Verdala and Varenta will alternate in a fortnightly service between Boston and London.

PREMIER LAW CONFERS WITH IRISH CHIEF

London, Oct. 24 (By Associated Press).—A. Bonar Law, Prime Minister, held a conference today with William T. Cosgrave, head of the Irish Provisional government.

A Colonial Office announcement on the subject read:

"In view of the change in the government arrangements were made at the beginning of the week for a meeting between Mr. Bonar Law and Mr. Cosgrave. The meet took place this morning. Mr. Cosgrave was accompanied by K. O'Higgins, secretary of home affairs, and Hugh Kennedy, law officer."

New Premier Faces Battle in Glasgow

London, Oct. 24 (By the Associated Press).—Glasgow is now the chief centre of interest in the political situation. The new Prime Minister, Andrew Bonar Law, on Thursday will announce the details of his policy there, and forty-eight hours later former Premier Lloyd George will address a meeting, being accompanied to Scotland by Sir Roland Horne, who was his Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The Times correspondent emphasizes the situation in Glasgow, which it says is due to the strength of the Communistic party among the industrial workers, adding that this is largely on account of the reluctance of the Glasgow members of Parliament to abandon the coalition. The writer suggests this position is likely to give impetus to the Scottish home rule movement.

It is hinted elsewhere that Bonar Law's re-election as member from the central division of Glasgow is in no wise certain, and that he will be opposed by Sir George Paish as a free Liberal. In addition to the Labor candidate, former Premier Asquith is to speak in Glasgow next week.

The Conservative party campaign with its one cry, Socialism, judging from propaganda from Unionist headquarters. "Safety first; vote Conservative"—will be the slogan, and among the voters will be "Be safe under the Unionists, not sorry under Socialism," and "No hands up to the reds; Socialism is the red route to ruin."

Viscountess Astor's Candidacy Approved

London, Oct. 24 (By Associated Press).—The question of Viscountess Astor's position in the Sutton division of Plymouth has been settled by the Central Conservative Association, declaring her the official Conservative candidate. It is understood that Dr. Bayly will oppose her, as well as a Labor candidate.

RECTOR'S LOVE SOARS TO POETIC HEIGHTS AT END OF DIARY

ABRUPTLY STOPS ENTRIES IN AMAZING RECORD

(Copyright, 1922, by the New York American.)

(Reproduction in whole or in part is expressly forbidden.)

New York, Oct. 24.—The American publishes today the last instalment of the private diary of the late Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, covering the last Sunday and Monday of his vacation in Maine, and written twenty-four days before the night when he and the object of his impassioned utterances on paper, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, were found brutally murdered.

His mind in the last two days, as is revealed by the diary that he never dreamed would see the light of day, was a curious mixture of religious calm, as is evidenced by these instalments, and of the impatience of a very mortal and earthly lover.

In his very last instalment, that of Monday, August 21, he congratulates himself in secret, as he sets his thoughts on paper, on the cleverness with which "I have gotten mail steadily at Seal Harbor, and no one knows anything about it."

Touch of Pathos

He adds with a touch of pathos, in the light of subsequent tragic events:

"How our love sharpens our wits."

He betrayed that he had no idea that other sharp wits were ready to work or soon were to be at work. The last two entries in the Rev. Mr. Hall's diary follow:

"Sunday, Aug. 20.—Another Sunday away from you—dearest heart—always you 'liner' (note 'Always') with me, yet on this day are you always seem especially near — because I know we are worshiping together—today I went over to St. Mary's Church—N. E. Harbor — it was a fine service—Bishop Brewster of Connecticut had charge of the service—a Hy Lewis preached on the text—'It is Finished'—saying that it referred to character. So our Lord emphasized character rather than achievement. It isn't what a man HAS as what a man IS — a fine service — morning prayer and the holy communion—in the P. M. I took a nap—read a little and took a short walk to May Pete Point to see the sun set.

"Nothing doing tonight so I have read a little and am now ready to get in bed—good night darling, five more days and D. V. and I can clasp you close to myself again.

"Love Sharpens Wits"

"Monday, Aug. 21.—Off for a long trip today—at 10 we left for Seal Harbor where I got all your dear letters—which included those poems —dearest I really have been very clever in the way I have gotten mail steadily at Seal and no one knows anything about it—how our love sharpens our wits. When we went —a party of seven—to Jordan Pond —the Bubbles—S. W. Valley—the chasm—the Grant Slide and Somes Sound—in all about ten or twelve miles and rather stiff walking and climbing—we did not get back here until 8 p. m. and your clippings were awaiting me here.

"It seems like a direct greeting from you—which it is—I am fairly well tired but not over tired—so will get to bed directly—good night dear sweetheart of mine—four more days and three more nights to linger through until we are together again.

Monday, Aug. 22.—" (Here the diary abruptly ends).

The love exaltation of the rector in his later correspondence with Mrs. Eleanor Mills, only a few weeks before the double murder, show the rector's love touching the very heights of attachment.

He pours out in unmeasured and unrestrained feeling, the depth of his passion in wild, and previously unexampled expression to his "most wonderful lover." He rises to almost poetic flights in such phrases as:

"Fling your arms now to the wide heavens, for the heaven of heavens cannot contain that vast infinite love that pours more and more out of my heart toward you!"

The instalment, presented exclusively by the American today, is conclusive evidence that in the midst of his clerical duties and the rounds of his sacred calling, the rector was first of all in his heart an impassioned lover rather than a self-contained or ascetic cleric. His world revolved around his clandestine attachment to the woman with whom he linked himself in the self-designated relationship of "Lovers."

Irksome Waiting

He refers to the few remaining days before his return to New Brunswick from his holiday with the wife:

"How can I ever wait for four days to pass?"

And he asks later, that the choir singer, whose fine and mutilated body was so soon to be found beside his, should make "great plans for later in the month."

He regrets that her letters are not "book long" in these instalments that breathe his devotion. The love notes follow:

This message was written on two colored postale—one of them in the lobby of the public library in Boston, the other at Rift in Rocks, Ocean Drive, Bar Harbor, Maine:

"Dear, dear, darling heart of mine! Only four days more and I will be 'home' again! All your dear letters received gladly, joyfully, rapturously—I love you to tell me anecdotes of your childhood days—how you longed for your gypsy—your man, even then! Fling your arms now to the wide heavens for the heaven of heavens cannot contain that vast infinite love that pours more and more out of my heart toward you—you most wonderful lover. We most wonderful LOVERS—what a heaven we make about us and in us—can I ever wait for four days to pass?

(This message was written on the back of a postal of Main street, Seal Harbor, Me., and the postoffice is indicated by Hall with markings in ink.)

Tuesday morning—Your dear, good letter received. Make great plans for later in the month, for we will do everything that we want to. Dreaming—dreaming—you can read where there is no writing. Thank you ever so much for sending word.—D. T. L."

(The following card is the only one not sent enclosed in an envelope. It is addressed to "Mrs. Mills, 49 Carman street, New Brunswick, New Jersey." The writing is in German. The postmark is dated Aug. 10, 9 a. m.)

"Post wie der stein und lief wie des Meer."

Editor's note—This means "Solid as the rock and deep as the sea."

(This message was written on two colored post card views of the church at St. Mary's-by-the-Sea, Northeast Harbor, Me.)

"Your good letter (and clippings) come today. Thank you for your good full account of everything—if only your letters were books long. I never want to stop reading and when I write I never want to stop writing. I am glad you gave the flowers to Percy—perfectly right as is the good judgment you show in everything.

"I hope you are truly all well now, I will write to Mr. Emminsen. It would be well for you to express sympathy—I know how you feel—take an advantageous time. We are in North East Harbor—Mr. Kemmer brought us over. Rain and fog all day yesterday. I will get the new book on my way back. I am writing ever and ever."

Woman Witness to Tragedy Is Named

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 24 (By the Associated Press).—The name of the woman reputed to have witnessed the double murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, today became known.

She is Mrs. Ann Gibson, a widow, who with her son conducts a sixty-acre farm on Hamilton road, in a sparsely settled section several miles from here.

The night of the murder, she was said to have told investigators, she was riding a mule down De Bruasy's lane, through the Phillips farm, when she saw in a field the dim outlines of two men and two women.

According to the story she was first reported to have told, she became curious, halted her mule and watched. There was a moment of loud talking, the sound of a pistol shot, a streak of flame and one of the men fell. Then a moment later four more shots and one of the women dropped.

SUSPECT HELD IN MURDER OF PASTOR HALL

John the Evangelist, and the beautiful choir singer, Mrs. James Mills, the opinion was advanced by counsel for Charles Mills, sixteen-year-old daughter of the slain woman, that it a crime was committed by paid assassins and that it was inspired by jealousy.

TROOPS GUARD HALL HOME.

Prosecuting Attorney Joseph Stricker of Middlesex County and State police who have been investigating the mystery were expected today to inform the deputy attorney-general that sufficient evidence already has been gathered to warrant an immediate arrest.

A conference was arranged today between Prosecutor Stricker, Prosecutor Azariah Beekman of Somerset County, and the State policemen in Beekman's office.

State troops are still maintained around the Hall residence, where the widow of the slain clergyman is living in seclusion, protected by her attorney, Timothy N. Pfeiffer.

Miss Florence M. North, volunteer counsel for Charlotte Mills, is continuing her own investigation independent of the investigations of the State police, county detectives and municipal authorities.

Her findings to date, she said, do not permit the dropping of the theory that the crime was premeditated, by jealousy. She believes that a woman hired the assassins and that this woman witnessed the killing.

Passion Play Is Unjust to Jews, Says Wise

Chicago, Oct. .—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, New York rabbi, speaking here before a congregation of Jews, assailed the Passion Play of Oberammergau as an agency which inflames religious and racial prejudices against the Jews.

"The Passion Play was first presented in 1663," he said. "The play reflects the antipathy for the Jew that was so flagrant at that time. I hold that its performance is a grave injustice to the Jewish race."

5 BILLIONS FOR CLEW TO AN AMERICAN

Moscow, Oct. 24 (By the Associated Press).—Colonel William N. Haskell, director of the American relief work in Russia, has wired authorization to the relief workers in the Volga Valley to offer a reward of five billion rubles (about $500) to anyone who reports definitely the whereabouts of Phillip Shields, of the Relief Administration, who has disappeared.

The government authorities here announce that everything possible is being done to solve the mystery of the disappearance of Mr. Shields and that 150 experienced operatives have been assigned to the task of unravelling the mystery. These operatives are mostly members of the Moscow political police.

They are working under a chief who has established headquarters in Simbirsk. In addition, the American authorities have engaged detectives who are co-operating with the local officials.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Tells How to Darken Gray Hair with Barbo Compound

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

Suylpho-Nathol ended our sink smells"

Advertisement

"Our kitchen sink became positively objectionable. We tried everything—poured in gallons of hot soda suds, ammonia, lye water. Nothing seemed to help. Finally, John sent for the plumber.

"He opened up the trap—the curved pipe under the sink. My dear! That's where the smell came from! I never knew a sink drain could be so dreadful.

"After the plumber left, the odor was not so bad for a while, but then it grew worse.

"I'm so proud of my clean, little kitchen. That sink made me too blue for anything.

"Last Thursday evening, the Lyons were over and Mrs. Lyons came into the kitchen to help me with the coffee and sandwiches.

"What a perfect dear of a kitchen you have,' she said, going over to the sink for hands at the sink—and then I saw her smile fade.

"She is such a model housekeeper. I felt like crying. 'Oh, isn't it too dreadful!'—I managed to say. 'And we've done everything.'

"It was then she told me about Sylpho-Nathol.

"It didn't seem possible, but Mrs. Lyon had had a sink that smelled even worse, she said, than mine. And Sylpho-Nathol made it sweet and clean over night.

"Next morning, I phoned the grocer to include a bottle of Sylpho-Nathol in my order. Following directions on the package, I put a teaspoonful into a quart of warm water and poured this deep-smelling, pearly gray solution into the sink drain.

"From that minute, my sink has smelled just as sweet and clean as it always looked.

"I use Sylpho-Nathol in a lot of ways—for scrub water that not only cleans and sweetens, but destroys all kinds of germs; as a spray that cleans away damp, musty, cellar smells; for the laundry tubs, toilet bowls, drains and garbage cans. And, of course, I use it regularly in the bathroom, around the toilet fixtures, and as a weekly finish for the closet bowls."

Sylpho-Nathol is 4½ times stronger than Carbolic Acid—yet is so safe to have in the house in a cake of soap. It comes in four handy sizes, 15c, 25c, 65c, $1.25. Complete directions are on the bottle. Your grocer or druggist has it. If he hasn't, he can get it easily. Just ask for it by name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

CLINE OPENS FIGHT FOR LIFE; WOMAN HEADS MURDER JURY

'MOVIE' SLAYING IS TOLD

Defence Claims Bergen Died In Struggle Over Gun in Cline's Home

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 24.—The trial of George Cline, Charles Scullion and Ida Thornton, charged with the murder of "Handsome Jack" Bergen, daredevil of the films, in Cline's home at Edgewater, N. J., Aug. 29 last, moved with scenario swiftness.

Attorney W. B. Mackay said Cline would claim self-defence and "justifiable homicide" as extenuation.

WOMAN IS FOREMAN.

A. C. Hart, prosecuting attorney, objected to this defence, contending the terms were contradictory. Justice Parker substituted "excusable homicide" for "justifiable homicide."

Mackay declared Bergen had deserted his wife and child and subsequently had attacked Miss Thornton in his apartment in New York. Pointing out that Cline had regarded Bergen as his best friend, Mackay told of instances where Cline had intrusted Mrs. Cline and their children to the care of Bergen.

Mackay admitted that Cline's real name was George Walz and that the State's version of the tragedy was accurate in many points.

Six women are on the jury, and the youngest of them, a twenty-five-year-old stenographer, the first on the jury list to be called, is its foreman.

By direction of Justice Parker, the jurors were placed over night in the Mansion House and were entertained last night at a theatre. The foreman is Mrs. Susan A. Squire, employed by the Bergen County Tuberculosis Association.

STORY OF MURDER TOLD.

Prosecutor A. C. Hart and his assistant, Charles J. McCarthey, gave a graphic presentation of the murder and events immediately connected with it. In Mr. Hart's opening address to the jury he promised to show that on the night of August 27, Cline telephoned to Bergen to come in his home in reference to a position and that when Bergen arrived he was confronted by Cline and his wife, Alice Thornton, and Charles and Lawrence Scullion.

As soon as Bergen saw them, according to Mr. Hart's rebuilding of the tragedy, he attempted to leave. But his exit was barred by Cline with drawn revolver. A fight followed, a shot, and then Bergen stumbled from the house mortally wounded.

Miss Thornton met Bergen two years ago, Mr. Hart continued, and they became intimate friends. After Bergen ceased his attentions to her she met Cline and told him of intimacy between Bergen and Mrs. Cline.

She raised her arm to prevent Mrs. Cline from stopping the shooting, Charles Scullion, he said, gave Cline the gun with which Bergen was shot. Therefore both Miss Thornton and Scullion were implicated by the evidence, a point which the court sustained.

GALE RAZES MANY ONECO BUILDINGS

Oneco, Ct., Oct. 24.—Daybreak revealed more than a score of buildings, large and small, blown down in different parts of this town by the terrific night gale. This section of the State has suffered thousands of dollars damage. Orchards are stripped of bushels of late fruit, with many trees uprooted or with limbs ripped off. One farmer reports several hundred dollars damage to his apple orchard.

Betty Alden Hears Boston Society Is To Lose Mrs. Horatio Slater for Winter

By BETTY ALDEN

THE stately mansion on Beacon street, the rather exciting if harmless escapades of Horatio Nelson Slater, Jr., the superb collection of rare tapestries which graced the Beacon street home, the jolly house-parties held at the Slater place in Readville (once designated by its mistress as a mere "camp"), the frolicking lion cub, which young Slater once brought into the house as a "pet"—all are brought to mind when the name of Slater is mentioned.

Nowadays, Boston sees very little of Mrs. Horatio Slater, though the former Mabel Hunt was at one time a very imposing figure in the Hub's innermost circles. Mrs. Slater still pays frequent visits to the Readville place, but last Winter she spent in New York, and now I hear that she is to be in Gotham for another Winter, where she has taken an apartment at No. 907 Fifth avenue. She is expected to arrive today in New York on board the Majestic, after a Summer and early Fall spent abroad.

NOT so many years ago, much of the gaiety of Boston's social life revolved itself about the Slater family.

But everything is changed now. Horatio Nelson Slater has passed away, the town house on Beacon street has been converted into a Masonic Club, Mrs. Slater and the family are only now and then at the Slater place in Readville, Ray Slater is married now and lives in New York; Esther Slater, too, has joined the ranks of the "Married Maidens," as the Social Register terms them, and lives also in Gotham, which is also the home of their brother, Horatio Nelson Slater, Jr.

Speaking of the latter, only a few months ago he and his bride, formerly Martha Lyon of Pittsburgh, paid a visit to Boston, and on this occasion Mayor Curley presented the young couple with the keys to the city.

It will be recalled that young Slater, a member of the Harvard '16 class, has presented the Franklin Park Zoo with several lions. Slater has made sort of a hobby of collecting lion cubs.

MRS. JAMES JACKSON CABOT and Mrs. George Lee have concluded their sojourn at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and are returning North.

THE open season on pheasants and partridges begun in the Berkshire Hills, and already hunters are reporting good results. The Fall season in the Berkshires never fails to attract a large-sized contingent from Boston.

AMONG the fashionable throng which gathered on Saturday for the Myopia steeplechases held in Topsfield at the Bradley Palmer estate was Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman, the former Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor, whose attire is always decidedly chic.

At the races on Saturday, the author of "Why Not?" was gowned entirely in brown, from her shoes to her hat, and even to the light brown cane she carried. When society presented "Why Not?" last March in aid of the Infants' Hospital, Adelaide Whitman lead the group of "Astecs" in their fantastic dance. She is a tall, slender blonde, with gray eyes, and usually takes part in most of the Vincent Club shows.

MISS GWENDOLYN CUMMINGS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln C. Cummings, has been spending a few days in New York at the Belleclaire.

PROMINENT among the deb presentations of early November is the tea which Mr. and Mrs. James A. Parker are giving at their home on Mt. Vernon street to introduce their daughter, Miss Virginia Parker.

Another important bud function is the tea which Mr. and Mrs. David C. Percival are giving at the Country Club on November 9 for their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Percival. On the same evening they are giving a dance for her.

A NUMBER of notable matrons are working busily for the success of the annual bazaar of the Women's Municipal League, which takes place November 9 at the Copley-Plaza. Besides the bazaar, there will be a luncheon, and later on a vaudeville show. Mrs. William Goodwin of Commonwealth avenue is in charge of the affair.

MRS. HENDRICKS H. WHITMAN

Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman (Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor) was snapped at the Myopia steeplechases held on Saturday at Topsfield, and for which the entire sport-loving clan along the North Shore turned out.

MORE CASH FOR MAYFLOWER

With the Mayflower literally "straining at her hawser" to be off on the race with the winner of the International Fisherman's Trophy, sport lovers throughout New England are "digging down" for the fund with which to pay expenses of the Invitation Fisherman's Race.

With the Henry Ford almost universally recognized as the winner of the International races, members of the Mayflower's crew are daily watching her activities. They are confident that the Mayflower can defeat any fishing schooner in the world.

More than $2,000 has been received at the office of A. L. Parker, treasurer of the Invitation Fisherman's Race, at No. 19 Boston Fish Pier, Boston, Mass. Much more money is needed. It will take at least $3,000 to pay the expenses of the contenders and to provide prizes totalling $5,000.

The exact total of the contributions in the hands of the treasurer is $2,292. The donations:

Boston American, $200.
Previously acknowledged, $1,690.
O'Hara Brothers, $150.
Burns & McKeon, $50.
E. F. Phillips Company, $50.

Luncheon for Cox

A luncheon in honor of Governor Cox will be given tomorrow at the Hotel Brunswick at 12:30 by the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts. Speakers will be George Wharton Pepper, Senator from Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, vice-president of the Republican Executive Committee.

KIN OF FOUNDER BUYS BACK LONDON TIMES

London, Oct. 24.—It is understood that negotiations have been completed under which the Times will revert to the Walter family and that it will adopt the policy of supporting the government of the day, but with complete independence.

An interest in the newspaper has been purchased from the estate of Lord Northcliffe by John Walter, present chairman of the Times, after long negotiations conducted by Sir Campbell Stuart, managing irector of the newspaper. The Times was founded by John Walter, great, great, great grandfather of the present John Walter, in 1785.

SURGEON SETS AIR RECORD ON FLIGHT TO HUB

All airplane records for a New York to Boston flight were broken by the plane which carried Major Guy V. Rukes to this city for the congress of the American College of Surgeons.

Despite the fact that part of the way it bucked a stiff breeze, the plane, piloted by Lieutenant Longfellow, landed at the Framingham flying field just one hour and eighteen minutes after it left Mitchell Field on Long Island. The best previous record was one hour and twenty-eight minutes.

Major Rukes, who is post surgeon at Mitchel Field, will be made a fellow of the College of Surgeons Friday, when about 700 other surgeons will be admitted to the organization.

The second day of the convention here today included a series of surgical clinics at various local hospitals where Boston surgeons displayed the latest and most approved methods. Tonight Elnar Key, celebrated surgeon from Stockholm, will describe the process of removing emboli, or blood clots, from the extremities.

COL. DAVIS TO TELL OF ALLENBY'S DRIVE

Colonel Harry L. Davis, who was military attache from the United States to General Allenby during his campaign in Palestine, will speak in Gardner Hall, State House, tonight, on his experience in that part of the world. He will speak under the auspices of the 110th cavalry N. G., and while in this city will be the guest of Colonel George Williams, in charge of militia affairs.

THREAT OF CIVIL WAR SPREADS IN ITALY

By International News Service.

Naples, Oct. 24.—The political fate of Italy—perhaps civil war itself—was hanging in the balance today when the convention of Fascisti—an extreme nationalist organization of former soldiers, opened here. Troops have been massed to prevent disorders.

Thirty thousand men and women, affiliated with the Fascisti, have gathered here. Thirty thousand Italian soldiers, supported with artillery, machine guns and airplanes, have been massed at strategic points.

Leaders of the Fascisti are threatening to march upon Rome to seize the government. They are launching a great campaign to strengthen th organization in southern Italy.

Among the leaders on hand, is Deputy Mussolini, spokesman fo the organization in the Chamber of Deputies.

There was a great demonstration when thousands of members of the organization, wearing black shirts, paraded through the streets. The population seemed cordially disposed towards the Fascisti and there was no hostile move against the marchers.

Deputy Mussolini made the opening speech at San Carlo Theatre.

Would Ban Small Christmas Cards From the Mails

Washington, Oct. 24. — A campaign to discourage use of small-sized Christmas cards and envelopes has been inaugurated by the Postoffice Department. Small sized cards and envelopes, it is declared, are responsible for incalculable delay during the Christmas rush.

Because of their miniature size they cannot be run through the cancelling machines, making it necessary to do this work by hand.

The department has fixed the smallest size of such cards which can be conveniently mailed at 2¾ by 4 inches.

$250,000 SUIT IS FILED BY BEECKMAN

Providence, Oct. 24.—A suit for $250,000 damages was filed today in Newport County Superior Court by J. Henry Reuter, campaign manager for former Governor R. Livingston Beeckman, against the Providence News for publication of alleged false charges of bribery. This is returnable at Newport on December 6.

Hervey J. Legace of Woonsocket today was arrested on a warrant charging him with obtaining money under false pretences. He claims to have received $1,980 from the former Governor for campaign work in the interests of Beeckman, now running for United States Senate.

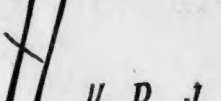
How Mrs. Bradley surprised her husband



Bill Bradley arrived home a few minutes earlier than usual and greeted his wife with more than customary good humor. There was a reason for it, as Mrs. Bradley was soon to learn.

"I've—I've—invited some of the fellows and their wives to come out tonight to play bridge," Bill began hesitatingly. "I meant to telephone you this afternoon, but—but—somehow or other it slipped my mind."

Bill stopped and looked up, half expecting a brisk comment on his thoughtlessness. But this time Mrs. Bradley merely smiled. "I'm glad they're coming," she said calmly, to Bill's intense surprise. "I'm sure we'll all have a good time."

They did! The evening went quickly by—Mrs. Bradley enjoyed herself every minute—there was none of that feverish hurrying and scurrying to prepare the usual midnight luncheon.

Bill was proud of his wife that night. She had never seemed a more perfect hostess.

"It is because I have learned how to entertain," she said. "Why wear yourself out preparing an elaborate spread when sandwiches and cake are quite enough, provided you give people plenty of good Coffee? After all, the secret of hospitality is to make people feel at home. And, nothing does that like a chummy, cheery cup of Coffee."

At this time of year GREEN OLIVES are great

When there's frost in the air, green olives are an added treat. Sharpened appetites delight in the salty, tangy flavor.

Crisp weather just seems to suggest the firm, plump, meaty fruit. Perhaps, because there are so many occasions on which to serve them.

For green olives are correct at afternoon teas, at bridge parties, at formal and informal dinners, and at after-theatre parties.

Green olives are as good in salads, sandwiches and as garnishes, as by themselves. Buy a bottle or two today. Keep them on hand for impromptu parties.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your kidneys occasionally with Jad Salts if you eat too much meat.

No man or woman who eats lots of meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much meat may form uric acid, which clogs the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood; then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

CABINET TALKS OF HOLDING UP DRY ORDER

New York, Oct. 24. (By the Associated Press.)—Counsel for foreign and American steamship companies, whose suit to enjoin the carrying into effect of the Daugherty liquor ruling, was denied by Federal Judge Hand yesterday, probably will appeal to a United States Supreme Court Justice for a supersedas stay, holding up enforcement until the Supreme Court acts on the appeal from Judge Hand's decision.

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 24.—New regulations framed under the Daugherty ruling barring intoxicating liquors from shipping in American waters will safeguard the rights of foreign ships to possess abundant stocks of medicinal whiskey and will allow wet supplies to enter the United States for foreign diplomats, it was declared today at the Treasury Department.

At today's cabinet meeting the proposal was discussed of having the President issue an executive order suspending entirely the enforcement of the Daugherty ruling until the Supreme Court of the United States shall have handed down a decision on it.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was said to have carried such a proposal to the meeting.

Prohibition Commissioner Haynes has instructed all liquor law enforcement agencies to apply the rule of common sense to the new order. There will be no drastic steps countenanced either in the enforcement or customs branches of the treasury except in the "most flagrant" cases.

MISS LILY F. DARCY.

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 24.—The polls opened here at noon today for the special primary held to fill the unexpired term of Judge Joseph Walsh as Representative from the Sixteenth Congressional District. The two contestants for the Republican nomination are Miss Lily F. Darcy of New Bedford and Charles L. Gifford of Cohut. There is no one running on the Democratic ticket. Miss Darcy was secretary to Judge Walsh for five years.

'KNIGHTHOOD' DECORATIONS BY URBAN

The Park Theatre is a hive of industry in preparation for the opening, next Thursday evening, of the engagement of Marion Davies in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," the Cosmopolitan production which has been acclaimed as one of the great triumphs in the photoplay art. The playhouse is being thoroughly refurnished and decorated under the personal direction of Joseph Urban, the famous artist.

So, when the doors open next Thursday night, Bostonians will be treated to the spectacle of one of the handsomest interiors ever fitted to perfectly present a motion picture. The character of the production manner is this attention because critical opinion unites in attesting that never were the extensive resources of the picture producing art indulged to further limits than this picturing of Charles Major's ever popular love romance of the Henry VIII. court.

Pretentious in proportions, opulent in investiture, accuracy in detail to attain historical correctness, in costume and scenes, and perfection in acting are said to be the high lights marking the production. Marion Davies is cred ted with the finest work of her screen career, and she is supported by a carefully selected cast of eminent players.

A very much enlarged orchestra has been engaged and Victor Herbert will personally direct the musicians the first three days.

WALDON'S CASINO—"Keep Smiling" opened at Waldron's Casino yesterday and that's just what the audiences did—except when they were laughing. It is a rollicking scream from start to finish, the musical revue which this lively burlesque company offers. Vaudeville and two heart-stirring moving pictures complete the big, three-in-one continuous program. The films show George Larkin in "Bulldog Courage" and Franklyn Farnum in "Smiling Jim." James E. Cooper has bunched a display of feminine beauty, gorgeous costumes, dazzling scenes and no end of singable music and sprightly dancing in two splendid acts.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA — Heart-dealing and heart-stealing are interwoven in the action of "Heroes and Husbands," the new photoplay starring Katherine MacDonald, which was offered delighted audiences at Gordon's Olympia yesterday. The film is a comedy drama, in which romance, thrills and subtle humor are cleverly combined.

Ferrabini to Sing "Carmen"

The special engagement of Ester Ferrabini, the Boston soprano, to sing the role of "Carmen" with the San Carol Grand Opera Company during its forthcoming visit to this city, is announced by Impresario Fortune Gallo, of that organization.

Film Princess

MARION DAVIES

Alice Ferrabini will have two performances of the Ester favorite, the first on Friday night, November 10, and the second Wednesday afternoon, November 15.

Impresario Gallo also announces that Senor Amador Famadas, dramatic tenor, late of the Reale Madrid, and who is now making his first American tour, with the San Carol company, will appear in both productions of "Carmen" at the Boston Opera House.

'TIGER ROSE' GIVEN AT ST. JAMES

"Tiger Rose," at the St. James this week, offers more than an evening's pleasure to theatre-goers. The portrayal of Canadian Northwest life is as realistic as it can be, and charming Evela Nudson does full justice to the part of Tiger Rose.

In the story, she is an orphan adopted by Hector MacCollins, factor of the Hudson Bay trading post. She is loved by all, but loves but one, a strange engineer, who is accused of a killing. With love as only a Canadian Francaise can love she does all in her power to save him.

Ralph Romley, Mark Kent and Anna Layng portray their characters admirably, and a portrayal of a typical mounted policeman is well done by Edward Darney.

AWARD PRIZES IN PEARL CONTEST

Announcement is made today of the award of prizes by the "Spice of Life" company, at the Boston Opera house, in connection with the contest held for theatre patrons, who were asked to name the number of carats in Madame Nitza's costume.

Clara Roberts of the Tremont Building won the first prize of $50; Steave A. Gerhardt of No. 39 Pomeroy street, the prize of $25; A. Bousgaard of No. 76 Westland avenue was awarded $15, and T. B. Reynolds of Revere was given $10. The winners were selected by a drawing presided over by Acting Mayor David I. Brickley.

Coming Events

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Seats will go on sale next Thursday morning for the two weeks' engagement of Doris Keane in "The Czarina," which begins next Monday evening at the Hollis Street Theatre.

FINE ARTS THEATRE—By special arrangement with J. C. Duff, Albert Steinert will offer "The Beggar's Opera," for an indefinite engagement in this city at the Fine Arts Theatre, beginning Monday evening, November 6. This gay, tuneful musical piece comes to Boston after an astounding run of more than two years in London.

"FACTS AND FIGURES" PLEASES AT MAJESTIC

"Facts and Figures," a musical revue in eleven scenes, produced by L. Lawrence Weber and William B. Friedlander, which opened at the Majestic Theatre last night, is one of the most promising revues staged in the new unit running through the Shubert circuit this year, and played to a good house.

Frank Burt, the leading comedian, with dazzling costumes of the chorus girls, spectacular dancing and unusually good singing, help to make the musicomedy an instant hit.

Edna Charles and Mario Villani sing well, while Myrtle Rosedale, Frank Burt's partner, Japonette, Hern Rose, George Jinks, Tom Fairclough, Edward Bleland and Wally Sharples do sincere work. The chorus is excellent.

BRAGGIOTTI SISTERS AT KEITH'S

In marked contrast to Isadora Duncan's chilly reception, the Braggiotti Sisters, Boston's own society aesthetic dancers, were received last night at Keith's as though they were giving a reception to their friends rather than a performance for the public.

The audience warmly applauded their artistic dance series. Berthe and Francesca both appeared in "The Reapers at Twilight," then Francesca alone in a dance entitled "Fragrance." Berthe in a solo dance billed "The Etruscan Vase" and the sisters in the Italian national "Tarantella."

Craig Campbell, American tenor, offered a program of classic and semi-classic songs, with Hector McCarthy at the piano. The heavy comedy honors of the bill undoubtedly go to Jessie Busley & Co. who appeared in Harry Waggstaff Gribble's travesty of current mystery plays, entitled "Batty." Jimmy Lucas, with his comedy assistant, Francene, offered "Vampires and Fools," and drew more than his share of laughs.

Others on the excellent bill were George Choos' production of "The Little Cottage," starring Frank Sinclair and Cliff Dixon, with Ethel Russell, Marie Saxon and Kathleen Morris; Harry Burns & Co., in the Italian sketch "I Think You Touch"; Dooley & Sayer, Sam Barlow and Kate and Wiley.

BILLY SUNDAY WANTS MISS DUNCAN DEPORTED

Winthrop Jews Organize to Fight Klan

TO EXPOSE WORK OF KU KLUX

More Than 150 Members Enrolled and Organization Grows Rapidly

Threatening to expose the Ku Klux Klan and all its activities, Louis Byrens, of No. 11 Forest street, Winthrop, has organized the Jewish Welfare League of that town. Assisting him is Mrs. Rose Frank of the same address.

The organization has more than 150 members enrolled and is growing rapidly. It is the outgrowth of the attempt by her Mrs. Alfred Kann of wealthy New Yorkers from the Cliff House in Winthrop last August because she was a Jew.

The first object of the newly formed organization will be to enroll all Jewish people of the town into the society and to see that they become voters.

If they are not citizens they will be given free instruction so as to enable them to take out their naturalization papers.

The society will then organize into a body to oppose the activities of the Ku Klux Klan and will endeavor to promote Americanism among the Jewish citizens.

Meetings will be held twice a week in the Winthrop Casino, on Monday and Wednesday.

The officers of the organization are President, Louis Cohen, vice president, Harry Weiss, secretary Silverman and treasurer, Meyer Frank.

Louis Byrins is chairman of the trustees and the society will have well known Jewish leaders at each meeting to address the members.

Negro Candidate for House Files Anti-Ku Klux Bill

Terming the Ku Klux Klan an "organization which is a menace to the country," Matthew W. Bullock, colored, candidate for the House of Representatives from Ward 13, filed a bill with the clerk of the House to prohibit the organization of the Klan.

"Their propaganda is directed at the Jews, Catholics and negroes," Mr. Bullock stated. "In the South End of Boston we feel the effects more than in other sections.

"I have filed the bill with the House, and even though I am not elected, will push it through to the best of my ability."

Mr. Bullock is a graduate of Dartmouth and the Harvard Law School. He was a member of the Dartmouth football team which defeated Harvard in 1903.

Roxbury Klan Note Author's Arrest Near

If the threatening letter recently sent to Mrs. Annie Glick of No. 3 Normandy street, Roxbury, warning her to move out of the neighborhood, came from a member of the Ku Klux Klan, as it purported to be, the Klan will very probably be given a speedy sample of the "law and order" of which they speak so fluently.

The Roxbury police, working with a Federal postoffice inspector, believe that they will be able to arrest the culprit in a short time.

SEIZE TWO STILLS IN ASLYUM STREET

Two fifty-gallon stills, 1,600 gallons of mash and forty gallons of moonshine today were seized by Sergeant Daniel Hines and the police liquor squad in a three-story dwelling at No. 40 Asylum street, South End. A warrant has been applied for the police for the arrest of a man.

SAYS GETTIGAN KILLED AUNT FOR MONEY

A desire to inherit the fortune of his uncle motivated J. Thomas Gettigan to kill his aunt, Mrs. Lizzie V. Cook of Revere, on June 19, 1921, Assistant District Attorney Maurice Caro charged today at the trial of Gettigan on a first degree murder charge, before Judge Dubuque and a jury in the Superior Criminal Court.

Mr. Caro said the prosecution would prove Gettigan tried to make a deal with an "African dodger" at Revere Beach concession, to chloroform the uncle, Clifford W. Richardson.

Mrs. Cook, Mr. Caro said, was the only one in direct line of inheritance who stood between Gettigan and the fortune of Richardson.

When the body of Mrs. Cook was exhumed, the assistant district attorney said, and an autopsy performed, it was found that the stomach contained three grains of arsenic.

Mrs. Emma L. Meader of Lynn said she knew Mrs. Cook and frequently called on her. She testified that five days before the death of Mrs. Cook she found her to be very ill. She said Mrs. Cook told her she was suffering from nausea and an intense thirst.

Under cross examination by Gettigan's counsel Roscoe Walsworth Mrs. Meader admitted that at the time Mrs. Cook was suffering from an abscessed tooth.

BLOWN OFF LADDER, MAN BADLY INJURED

Edwin Mayo, sixty years old, a shoeworker of Lynn, was painting a house on Lovett place. The wind blew him off the ladder. The police wiped off the paint and took Mayo to the Union Hospital, where his name is on the danger list. He sustained a fractured skull and internal injuries.

WHO'S WHO AND WHERE AMONG CONVICTS

Nesseb Abdallah and Dick Palmer are convicts—with a difference. Nesseb gets out of prison but can't keep out, while the law gets Palmer again and again, but can't keep him.

Nesseb, the Syrian "bad man" of Boston, made a sensational escape from Charlestown State Prison last April. He was working in a prison storehouse, unloading freight. He escaped aboard a passing freight and away he went. But he has just been trapped in Yonkers, N. Y. He will be sent back here to complete his three and one-half year term for burglary—and then some.

Richard A. Palmer, known as "Slippery Dick," was arrested here last September on a charge of stealing money on a train. He was sent to New York and was started from there last Friday for the Pacific coast in custody of a California sheriff.

"Slippery" was dolled up with handcuffs and leg-chains and a fancy safety device known as the "Oregon boot," which is guaranteed to prevent escape. Palmer escaped, nevertheless, near Rawlings, Wyo., leaving the sheriff flat. He has twice escaped from prisons and twice from trains.

AGED NORTH END MAN REPORTED MISSING

The police have been asked in search for Matteo Caradonna, seventy years old, of No. 429 Hanover street, North End, who disappeared after attending church. His family fear foul play, not with standing some accident or illness may have befallen him. Caradonna is described as being five feet five inches tall, weighs 175 pounds and has gray hair. When last seen he wore a blue cap, gray suit and a gray shirt. He attended church on Prince street.

FLAPPERS BARRED IN ROXBURY

Young Churchmen, Answering Pastor's Questionnaire, All for Modest Girl

The day of the flapper is over—absolutely.

HE'D rather have her leading a Christian Endeavor meeting than be able to dance.

And SHE'S got to be modest, pure, affectionate, sympathetic, respectful—and regular at Sunday school!

Incidentally, girls, he I was right in our midst. In Roxbury, in fact, and he goes to the Roxbury Presbyterian Church. And there are half a hundred of him.

Flapperism—with all its attendant virtues of flirting, rousing, smoking and being generally risque—are given permanent knockout by the young men of the Roxbury Presbyterian Church, in their answers to questionnaires submitted to them by their pastor, Rev. Clarence A. Young.

"Do you admire the flapper type, or do you prefer the more modest, sedate girl?" was the first question on Pastor Young's questionnaire.

"I prefer the modest, sedate type," says the chap who'd rather have his girl leading the Christian Endeavor meeting than to know how to dance. And every mother's son of them, except one, backed him up in his choice.

"Do you think girls have a right to smoke cigarettes, and if so, do you object to having them do so?" was the next question.

"I for one, object to it," is the emphatic answer of the same male, and forty-nine others echo "Yea!"

"Would you prefer that a girl be a regular attendant at the movies or at church?"

"She should be a regular attendant at church," says the young man and, he adds, generously, that she might go to the movies, also, "once in a while," if they are "decent."

"Would you prefer that a girl dance well, or that she be able to read a Christian Endeavor meeting?"

"Lead a Christian Endeavor meeting," is the uncompromising answer.

"What characteristic in girls do you admire most?" is the final question and a long list of desirable qualities are enumerated, the man being asked to underscore those he finds most attractive.

"Modest, virtuous, serious, studious, jolly, affectionate, sympathetic, kind, thoughtful, ambitious, good housekeeper, good cook, respectful to parents, interested in church, active in Christian Endeavor, regular at Sunday school loyal to principle and an earnest Christian," are all favorite requirements, according to the indication of the young men.

"GOOD SPORT" CLASSIFIED.

For the benefit of those who are unable to accurately classify the modern product known as a "good sport," Reverend Young does so.

"There's a difference between this girl and the flapper," mused Dr. Young. "I think I know the kind you mean. Likes the boys—all of them; would smoke on a dare or even for fun; likes a good time in preference to many more serious things; is not above make-up; is a trifle risque but knows how to keep just over the right side of the line, and—well, is what you mean by a 'good sport.'

"She's not what I call a 'good' girl. The boys like her, of course. She's pleasing to them; they can have so much fun with her. But they don't marry her. Indeed, they don't!"

Jazz is positively on the blacklist. Dancing is permitted in "considerable moderation," but exponents of the aesthetic arts of Isadora Duncan or the Parisian Twist, will never find a sparring partner in Roxbury.

PRAYERS FAIL, GETS DIVORCE

Cambridge Wife Freed From Husband She Charges Was Jealous and Cruel

"Bless my father and make him a good man."

Every night little two and a half year old Gertrude Greenidge knelt by her crib and repeated this prayer, a prayer taught her by her mother.

Today, over in Middlesex Divorce Court, Mrs. Gertrude Greenidge of No. 177 River street, Cambridge, obtained custody of the girl and divorce from her husband Roland.

As the decree was announced, Mrs. Greenidge, twenty-three and pretty, jumped up and down, clasping her hands and shouting:

"I am free. I am free. Oh, mother, isn't it wonderful!"

PRAYED FOR DADDY."

Mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Whitlock, apparently agreed with daughter for they, too, applauded and all three embraced as the crowded court chamber gasped with astonishment.

Previous. Mrs. Whitlock had testified how her son-in-law's cruelty had forced his young wife to desert him and how the mother had had her baby pray for "daddy."

Mrs. Greenidge told how she and her husband had led a "turtle dove" existence in a small apartment up stairs over the Whitlocks at the River street house and how happy they had been until she went with him to Franklin to visit his mother.

STRUCK HER, SHE SAYS

Young men of the village, attracted by her charm, called frequently at the Greenidge home, in fact so often that the husband's ire was aroused and he beat his wife severely, she testified.

From that time on, Roland was so intensely jealous that he refused even to permit relatives to call at the Greenidge apartment, the wife and mother said.

Occasional visits of members of the family caused him to administer such physical punishment that Mrs. Greenidge deserted him last November, she admitted on the stand.

Roland did not contest the divorce. He did seek custody of little Gertrude, and as reason for having possession of the child, told of having contributed to her support.

This support, according to the testimony, consisted of a $1 birthday present, a pair of rompers and pair of garters.

SONS ACCUSED OF NEGLECTING MOTHER

Charged with neglect to support their 80-year-old mother, Michael, Patrick and John Twomey were before Judge Duff today. Michael was discharged, Patrick agreed to pay $2 a week, and John was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction, on the neglect charge and on the charge of being intoxicated. The mother, Mrs. Nanno Twomey, is with another son in Lowell.

CHILD UNINJURED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK

Irving Herson, three-year-old son of Nathan Herson of No. 31 Brownsville avenue, Lynn, narrowly escaped death when he was knocked down by a motor truck. The boy was still until the truck had passed over him. He was taken to the Lynn Hospital, where not a scratch could be found. The truck was driven by James Garfield of Harvard street, Dorchester.

Gets Divorce From Jealous Husband

Pretty Wife Found Her Charms Brought Woe Instead of Happiness

Cambridge wife who charges she couldn't live with husband because of his cruel treatment. She says he was so jealous he wouldn't even let relatives visit their home. She had their baby girl "pray for him," but in vain.

MRS. GERTRUDE GREENIDGE

WIFE'S ADMIRER DEFIES HUBBY WHEN CAUGHT

James A. Flynn took the witness stand in the East Cambridge Divorce Court and declared that when he found his wife in the arms of Louis Leveroni of Somerville late at night, he two defied him, laughed at him, and then embraced before his eyes.

"I told him never to come in my house again, and my wife informed me it was none of my business who came to see her," he said.

Flynn asserted that Leveroni spent most of his time in the Flynn residence and was "audacious" in his familiarity with Mrs. Flynn.

SAYS HUSBAND TRAILED HER.

The proprietor of a boarding house where Mrs. Flynn lived after leaving her husband testified that she once went to Mrs. Flynn's room at 1:30 in the morning to deliver a phone message, and found Leveroni there. Frank Howard of No. 95 Jacques street, Somerville, at whose house Leveroni lived, said that Mrs. Flynn had visited Leveroni's room on sixteen successive nights.

Inspect It.

"My husband has an evil mind," she said. "He could not conceive of a man and woman being simply friends. He suspected me of improper conduct with every man I spoke to. He followed me around the streets like an amateur detective, spying on me and humiliating me whenever he could."

IN BACK BAY RAID.

For a time, she said, she lived in an apartment at No. 7 Batavia street, Back Bay. Part of the apartment was occupied by Charles Munroe, who is named co-respondent with Leveroni by Flynn. She said that the police raided them one night, but that the court held her guiltless.

A decision in the case is pending.

WARNED AGAINST SEARLES LECTURE

Lawrence, Oct. 24.—Threatening letters warning him against giving a lecture on secrets of the life of Edward F. Searles, Methuen recluse millionaire, have been received by Dr. John C. Bowker. These have been turned over to police, who are investigating and who are taking precautions to safeguard the physician when he makes his speech. Dr. Bowker says he will carry out his original plans.

RESCUE CREW; SCHOONER IN BREAKERS

Rockport, Oct. 24.—An unidentified schooner caught in the breakers off Folly Point on the North shore of Cape Ann today is in danger of being driven on the rocks.

Coast guardsmen took off the crew in their boat and later stood by the vessel in the hope they might assist in working her out of her dangerous position.

Oil Ship at Chatham Is Floated Again

Chatham, Oct. 24.—The steel oil barge I. D. Fletcher struck on the southeastern end of Handkerchief Shoal today.

Her cargo was lightered and floated at high tide. A heavy sea was running.

Stamford, Ct., Oct. 24.—A 60-foot oil tanker, owned by the Gulf Refining Company, is pounding to pieces on the rocks 500 feet off Shippan Point. She dragged her anchor during a storm. Captain Peirson and one man rowed ashore.

Italian Freighter Hits Off Halifax

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 24.—The Italian freight steamer Montello is ashore off Clay Point, Anticosti and a wireless message received a few hours ago by the navy staff headquarters today. The message said the Montello was in no immediate danger, but that the weather was preventing her from moving off.

TRIAL OF DRUGGIST'S SLAYER OPENS NOV. 14

Judge Sisk of the Superior Criminal Court today set November 14 for the trial of Alfred W. Bartlett on a charge of murder. Bartlett is charged with having killed Frank G. Small, Dorchester druggist, on September 20. Four alienists appointed by the court to examine Bartlett as to his mental condition reported that he is of the psychopathic type, but not insane.

Despite the report of the alienists, James F. O'Connell, counsel for Bartlett, insists that the defense will be insanity. He says that his client is a believer in a Hindu cult and is firm in the conviction that he is a reincarnation of Napoleon.

'CLOTHES TOO SCANT TO PAD A CRUTCH'

Acrobatic Evangelist Objects to Actions of "Bolshevik Hussy" in Boston

Washington, Oct. 24. — Billy Sunday, acrobatic evangelist, playing a one-night stand here, demanded the deportation of Isadora Duncan, classical dancer, for proclaiming to a Boston audience that she was a Red and that Maxim Gorky was the hero of Russia.

"That bolshevist hussy, who doesn't wear enough clothes to pad a crutch—I'd like to be Secretary of Labor for fifteen minutes. I'd send her to Russia and to Gorky, that——"

Here his ordinary free flow of adjectives dammed itself up, and he said that America was getting in a bad way if it would stand for anything like that.

There were approving smiles on the faces of "Ma" Sunday and Gen. Charles E. Sawyer, President Harding's personal physician who introduced the evangelist to his audience.

Sunday had called on the President at the White House earlier in the day.

"The President put his arm around my shoulder," he said, 'and said to me: 'Billy,' he said, 'glad to see you. 'You never want anything from me.' He looked as if he needed cheering up. I'm going to send him a turkey from my farm in Oregon for Thanksgiving."

U. S. Officials Probe Isadora's Hub Dance

Washington, Oct. 24.—Three government departments have ordered complete reports on Isadora Duncan's alleged Bolshevik declarations before a Boston audience Saturday.

Officials said that while they were shocked at the eccentric dancer's reported omission of wearing apparel, they had no supervision over it; but if she is spreading Red propaganda, as alleged, she will find herself a Ellis Island on her way to a permanent sojourn in Russia, it was stated on high authority.

The Departments of Labor, Justice and State initiated inquiries when they had been advised that Miss Duncan divested herself of a red sash, and waving it above her head shouted, "I am a Red."

Labor officials said that the dancer could not be deported by them until other agencies act. If the authorities convict her of an immoral exhibition, it was said, the Secretary of Labor can deport her without more ado.

FACES PROBE IN FATAL GRID GAME

Springfield, Oct. 24.—The police today expect to question players who took part in the Shamrock-Morton football game of Sunday, when Simon Bissonnette, nineteen years old, was killed, and Henry LeFelvre, nineteen, and William Hechler, eighteen, were seriously injured. They are not suspected to Five

COLORED FANS CHEER VILLA IN BATTLE WITH EDWARDS

MIDGET FILIPINO REAL MASTER IN THE RING

By JACK CONWAY.

"Come on there, you Filipino, knock that Danny boy out!" We had left our seat at the press table at the end of the ninth round of the bout between Pancho Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion, and Danny Edwards, colored bantamweight champion, at the Boston Arena. We overheard the above remark in the upper tier of seats from a member of a group of colored fans, who apparently had gone to the fight to root for Edwards.

"Shoot the whole work, you Manila boy!" cried another member of the party. "How that boy can fight. Say, Danny, stand up there and make a show of it."

"That boy sure has brought home the bacon," said another colored fan, whom we recognized as a waiter at a downtown hotel and a warm admirer of Edwards. "It's a good thing that this here Filipino isn't a colored boy or Danny wouldn't have any title at all."

Pancho Pancho Villa had made good. His sensational fighting had captivated the big crowd that jammed the Arena for the bout.

Edwards, master boxer and mighty fighting man, had been crushed by the terrific onslaught of the new world's flyweight king. The little Filipino carried every round. He scored with terrific left and right-hand smashes to the head and body. He bounded off the ropes. He stood rigid, with hands down, and let Edwards start right-hand punches for the jaw only to find that the jaw was somewhere else when the blow was about to go over.

Stood in Corners and Let Dan Try His Stuff

He stood in corners and allowed Danny to try all of his stuff without scoring. And when he had a mind to, the Filipino marvel opened up and drove Edwards into corners and up against the ropes under a bitter, relentless attack.

Pancho Pancho is a fighter, every inch of him.

He weighed 113¼ pounds for Edwards. And it was 113¼ pounds of fighting bone and flesh.

Edwards weighed in at 115½ pounds. He had agreed to make 7 pounds ringside. In his eagerness to make this notch, he went a pound and a half below it. Edwards' normal fighting weight is 118 to 119 pounds.

Flyweight Champion Too Aggressive for Edwards

At 115½ pounds he was weakened unsteady. He did not have a chance of victory. But even if Villa had permitted Edwards to have entered the ring at 118 pounds the flyweight champion would have won. He is too aggressive for Danny. He also hits too hard for the colored sensation.

Villa was a riot with the crowd. His like had never been seen before. Everybody, and this included the Edwards' rooters, were on Pancho Pancho's band wagon shortly after the kickoff.

Jimmy Walsh, one of the world's greatest bantamweights twelve to fifteen years ago, acted as referee which made it a perfect setting.

Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills and the man who made it possible for George Moore to introduce Edwards to the East, sat with Boxing Commissioner Buckley. Possibly Paddy didn't enjoy the feature bout.

Frank Churchill, Former Boston'an, Enjoyed It

If Paddy didn't, Frank Churchill, former Bostonian and now resident of Manila, did. It was Churchill who conceived the idea of bringing Villa to this country. He started the seed that gained a world's championship for the Philippines.

Churchill remained back of Pancho Pancho's corner during the bout. He left the task of handling the champion to others. On several occasions Churchill gave instructions. His satisfaction came in watching his pupil batter into submission one of the great fighters of the bantamweight division.

Churchill says Villa can also defeat Joe Lynch, bantamweight champion. A large number of persons who saw the bout at the Arena will agree with him.

We have permitted the spotlight to shine on the characters at the ringside. Now let us turn it on Villa and Edwards as they appeared in battle.

Villa Opened With a Rush in the First

Villa opened with a rush in the first round. Left and right hand punches buried themselves in Edward's body and sent Danny's head popping backwards. Edwards was puzzled. He did not seem to know how to meet the rushing attack of his opponent.

And while aggressive, Edwards was also clever. His head bobbed from side to side. By the slightest movement of his head he avoided his rival's blows. It was Pancho Pancho's round.

Villa varied his attack in the second session. Left jabs bounced off Edwards' jaw with remarkable speed and precision. He had a happy faculty of ripping two left jabs to the jaw about as quickly as one can fire two shots from an automatic revolver.

Edwards, Great Boxer, Was Swept Off His Feet

Edwards, great boxer, was swept off his feet. He was powerless before the fast, whirling attack of his opponent. He went on the defensive, but this only meant the stopping of more left jabs and his inability to get out of the ways of crushing left and right hand wallops to the body. It was Villa's round by the proverbial mile.

Danny looked a little better in the third round. He moved around a little more than he had been doing. The result was that Villa missed quite a few heavy blows. But the Filipino managed to come through with enough heavy belts to win the round.

Villa gave Edwards a boxing lesson in the fourth game. When he tired of scoring himself, he held his head out for Danny to punch at. But it was a moving target and Edwards could not connect. Then Villa hopped around in corners and made his opponent look ridiculous.

Pancho Pancho Continues Exhibition in the Fifth

Pancho Pancho continued his merry exhibition in the fifth round. He whirled around the ring as Johnny Dundee did at his best. He has all of Dundee's old speed and tricks. And he can also punch. Ask Edwards. He knows.

From the fifth round on it was a procession. Villa scored when and where he pleased. Old-time fight writers liked to tell how a boxer hit his opponent with everything but the bucket. That's about what happened at the Arena.

Pancho Pancho came, he saw, he conquered.

Steve Gustin of South Boston won over Louis Leonard of the North End in the semi-final of eight rounds.

Freddy Williams of Dorchester won on a foul from Young Donahoe of the South End in three frames. Donahoe has been out of the ring for several months and had no direction to his blows. Referee Johnny Martin did the proper thing in stopping the mill.

Young Jack Johnson disposed of Willie Walker in eight frames.

Jack Conway Gave Fans Real Dope on Pancho Villa

Jack Conway solved the Villa-Edwards problem correctly.

"Villa's a wonder fighter. He will beat Edwards."

This was Conway's advance dope on the bout. It proved correct. He had received the tip that Villa was the real thing in the flistic game and that he would conquer the crafty Danny Edwards. And Jack was right once more.

The matchmakers apparently don't intend to give Jack any rest, as the Armory Club has Pat McCarthy and Tom Cotter billed to battle tonight. And Jack says:

"McCarthy to win!"

PAT M'CARTHY AND COTTER IN BATTLE

By RINGSIDE.

The Armory A. A. will get away from the old way of doing things and give the local boxers a chance to show their wares at a show to be staged at the Grand Opera House tonight.

Pat McCarthy.

Kid Gaslnk, he high priced, fancy, good-for-nothing fighter from the big board walk, will be missing. So will his brother, Young Get-the-Dough, and K. O., the Public Sap and the rest of the bunk 'em brothers.

Just local kids who can fight. That's all for the Armory Club shows.

Tonight Pat McCarthy of Roxbury and Tom Cotter of Quincy will battle in the feature tussle of ten rounds. The match has been billed for the heavyweight championship of New England. Of course Porky Flynn, Battling McCarthy, Jack (Twin) Sullivan and several others will take exception from this announcement, but they will receive an opportunity to file their exceptions with left and right hand punches at a later date.

McCarthy rules a favorite for tonight's affair. Roxbury Pat is in fine condition and he figures that his boxing class will gain for him the honors.

We would advise Pat not to overlook the fact that Cotter is the hardest hitting heavyweight in New England. When he pastes the opposition on the well known chin, said opposition doubles up and fades right out of the picture.

Dutch Reagan of East Boston and Frankie Ryan of Everett, a couple of fast, clever boxers who can also sock, will whirl forth to action in another ten-round mill.

Then you'll have Billy Murphy, Lowell sensation, quarreling with Young Benny of the South End in one eight-rounder, and Henry Ford of the North End tossing wallops at Johnny Curley of Roxbury, in another eight-session affair.

WESLEYAN PREPARES FOR TUFTS CONTEST

Middletown, Ct., Oct. 24.—Coach Fred Martin is putting the Wesleyan varsity into shape for its game with Tufts at Medford on Saturday. The work was light today. After the hard game with Hobart the first-string men did not scrimmage, but were given some loosening-up exercises and some work on the dummy and on signal. The men came through the Hobart contest in fine shape. It was demonstrated that Riday has developed into a promising quarterback and that Howard is a fast man in the backfield.

STAR IN THE FEATHER DIVISION

MICKEY TRAVERS © INSERT, VIC RICHARDSON

HARVARD COACH AT TUOHEY'S CARNIVAL

Frank (Jedlinski) Judson, the Harvard wrestling coach, will have a chance to show the benefit of the experience he gained in the tournament at Mexico City last Summer. He will take on Elmer Sanders of Ashland, Wis., in the semi-final of Promoter Tuohey's all-star show in Mechanics Building a week from tomorrow night.

Sanders rates exceptionally high in the Middle West, and in one of his first appearances in the East will be at his best. Judson was the sensation of the tournament in Mexico, where he was credited with being the most versatile wrestler of the entire group of 56 entries. They will go one fall to win.

Cliff Binckley, the former Ohio football star, who will meet Stan Zbyszko in the main event, will finish his training in Boston.

CLASSY ARRAY OF BOXERS TO BATTLE

The management of the Sacred Heart A. C. made a hit with the amateur boxers when it decided to give diamond rings, instead of watches to the winners. Many of the best amateur boxers have entered for the Thursday night tourney. Among the entries received yesterday were those of Dominick Lombardi, Francis McDonald, Charley Costello and Chester Oakes. Oakes is a pupil of Frankie Mack, former light-weight star, while Lombard and McDonald are directed by "Lou" Jason. Costello is one of the best performers in the 115-pound class. The classes are 112, 118, 126, 135 and 147 pounds. Entries close with Tommy Regan, No. 36 Neptune road, East Boston.

CHICKS SUGGS WINNER OVER CHARLEY MANTY

New Bedford, Oct. 24.—Chicks Suggs, New England featherweight champion, decisively trimmed Charley Manty, a local boy, who has aspirations in the 130-pound class. Manty went well in the first three rounds, but thereafter was at the mercy of the colored battler.

Young Mack of Fall River in his debut here handed Tony Thomas a clean-cut licking in a fast eight-round semi-final. Thomas was best at long range, but Mack's aggressiveness was too much for him.

TRAVERS STAR IN FEATHER DIVISION

Mickey Travers, brilliant New Haven featherweight, continues to be a sensation in his bouts in New England rings.

The Vic Richardson entry is one of those rare combinations—a master boxer and a puncher.

Every featherweight in New England of prominence, with the exception of Chick Suggs, has been walloped by Travers. Suggs wasn't very enthusiastic about risking his featherweight title in a contest with Travers.

Richardson, however, kept bounding Suggs and finally convinced David Lumiansky, manager of the little negro star, that the only way Suggs could retain public confidence was by meeting Travers.

The Travers-Suggs match was finally made after much wrangling. The weight will be 126 pounds ringside. The managers of the rival boxers have posted a forfeit of $500 for weight and appearance.

Several clubs have made bids for this match, but no offer has yet been accepted.

ROBINSON TO FIGHT MADDEN AT SALEM

On Friday night, at Salem, George Robinson will met Tommy Madden of Brooklyn, N. Y., in the main bout. Madden has met the best middleweights in the country and should give Robinson a rugged battle.

Billy Nelson of Brockton and Frankie Buff of Holyoke will clash in the semi-final. Ray Mercier and Silver Tells will box six rounds. Eddie Williams will turn pro and meet Young Benny in the opening six rounder.

MITCHELL WILL PLAY ALLEN SECOND NOV. 8

Billerica, Oct. 23.—Manager Tourtellot of the Mitchell Military Boys' School football eleven has booked a return game with the Allen Military School second team of West Newton for November 8.

He is also trying to book a game with the Pennsaden School varsity eleven for November 1.

Lafayette Band to Come With the Eleven

Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast. It also has the power to inspire warriors to deeds of glory and football players to acts of heroism. The Lafayette eleven will have the college band along when it comes to play Boston College at Braves Field on Saturday. Lafayette has not played here in years and years, if it ever did, and on the first appearance of the Easton, Pa., team, one of best in the land, will be a gala event in college grid annals. The Lafayette team will come here determined and bent on winning so as to cut another notch in the consecutive victory stick, and hundreds of football fans will go out to the Tepee to see the eleven considered by many the best in the land. It looks like a big day for Lafayette, Boston College and the old pigskin sport, and also for the Home of Big Things on Saturday.

DORMAN TARGET OF ABUSE IN SOCCER

By ART CURLY

Some of the local near-star soccer players and medal hunters seem determined to drive a fine American sportsman out of the game. The man in question is none other than Frank Dorman, manager of the Boston Blues and vice-president of the Boston and District League.

Frank Dorman.

In the two seasons that Dorman has been connected in an official way with football, he has endeared himself to and gained the respect of every man he has met. It seems a great pity that a man of his type, who is capable of doing this sport no end of good should be discouraged and driven from the game by a few poor sports who would be of no great value to any club.

Dorman took over the management of the Starteant team last season when they were doing nearly every game, and by hard work, perseverance and force of character, turned out a winning aggregation. This season he reorgan zed his club under the name of the Boston Blues, and at the start of the season had a fairly strong team signed up. The whole trouble started out in being too much of a good fellow and releasing two or three of his best players.

Last Saturday Frank went into the first round of the State Cup competition with only eight players. For some unknown reason three or four players, who had agreed to be on hand, failed to appear.

DARTMOUTH CAPTAIN OUT OF BIG GAME

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 24.—Chick Burke, Dartmouth star, captain and left halfback, was carried off the field with a torn ligament in his left ankle, an injury received in scrimmage. Burke is the first calamity of the new drive instituted by the Big Green coaches in an attempt to get the Dartmouth team in shape for the big games of the schedule.

Burke will probably be out of the Harvard game, although every effort will be made to get him in shape. Trainer Jack Watson will say nothing about the Green captain's chances of playing football again before the Cornell game.

It is Burke's second injury of the season. He was injured in the first period of the opening game of the season, with Norwich, and could not get into the game until last Saturday, when he played for two periods against Vermont. He was not in the best shape then, and the coaches had figured on working him hard this week to get him in shape for Harvard.

Several changes were made in the personnel of the Dartmouth eleven. Most startling of these was the promotion of Haby Mills to quarterback, in place of Frankie Smith. However, several other changes were in order. C. Aschenback was moved along the line from tackle to guard. He took Swenson's place. Hatch took Aschenback's tackle position. Johnny Allen was in Burke's place at right half on the first team, even before Burke was injured.

Mills' Shift is the Biggest Surprise Fall.

Mills' shift is the biggest surprise of all, although the midget quarter was a star in the two games he played as third string pilot. Starting in the season two weeks behind the others he got his first chance in the Maine game, although time called before he got a chance to call a play.

Against Middlebury he was sent in to relieve Smith at the close of the first half and did so well that the coaches allowed him to stay in, while against Vermont he was the shining light of the Dartmouth rally in the closing minutes of the game. He has little effect on the game only a substitute quarter on his freshman team three years ago and being an insignificant substitute ever since then.

This year, although up to today rated behind Smith and Stevens as quarters, he has been able to get more drive and pep into the team than either of his superiors.

Shift of Aschenbach Was Really Expected

The shift of Aschenbach was more or less expected. He was guard on the crack eleven of two years ago, and last year was in danger of being to play. This year, he was shifted to tackle to fill a supposed weakness, which never materialized, although he could have been signally weak Aschenbach should bolster up the centre of the line well, with Donmoore and Taylor to work with.

Allen has been the hard luck man of Dartmouth football for two years. He always started in the early season games, but broke some bone just when the big games rolled around. He is the fastest man on the squad, as well as one of the shiftiest. He has been on the hospital list since before the first game this year.

Green Clans Gather to Avenge Vermont Defeat

The Green clans are gathering to avenge the Vermont defeat by winning victories ever more important rivals was shown today by the coaching staff on alumni oval. In addition to Head Coach Cannell, who is not at all dishearted with the Green showing against Vermont and who praises the team for their fight, were Larry Bankhart, Clark Tobin and Jesse Hawley, of the advisory staff. Jack Ryan, regular end coach, Jim Robertson and Jack McAuliffe, regular line coaches, Moose Engelhorn, who worked out with the line, and Norm Millmore, a Dartmouth star centre a decade ago, who drilled the centres.

Tobin Ran the Squad Around the Field

Tobin showed something new in the line of coaching when he took the final turn around the track with the squad, driving home the points that he had made during the afternoon's practice.

The whole college is enthusiastic about the prospects of the team in future games and "Fight Week" has been started among the students, as well as the players, to effect a change.

The squad was put through the longest and hardest practice of the year, not a man leaving the field until darkness. The line men were put through a long session, the coaches feeling one of the prime causes of Dartmouth's failure is being the inability of the line on either offence or defence.

Golf Stars Play in the Harvard Campaign

Golfing enthusiasts got a glimpse of four champions at the Brae Burn Club this afternoon when Bobby Jones, Jesse Sweetser and Rudy Knepper represented Harvard, Yale and Princeton respectively, in a four-cornered exhibition match. Francis Ouimet was the other star golfer. The match was given by the Harvard Golf Association and was the first step in the campaign to raise $150,000 for a new golf course for Harvard students.

Everett S. Litchfield, president of the Massachusetts Golf Association, acted as referee and twenty-one Harvard students patrolled the course.

TWO BIG FEATURE GAMES FOR LOCAL FOOTBALL FANS

HARVARD-DARTMOUTH B.C. VS. LAFAYETTE

By CHARLES E. PARKER

The Greater Boston football public is in the same position this week as the Jane with two bimbos on the string, each demanding of her an immediate indorsement on a marriage contract.

Two potential Eastern championship elevens are booked to perform here Saturday, and the U. B. F. B. P. would like awfully well to see them both, but unfortunately the one is performing at the stadium and the oth-r is pastiming at Braves Field.

We refer, of course, to Lafayette and Harvard. It would be perfect if that pair were on opposite sides of the gridiron. But they will not be, for Lafayette will be engaging Boston College and Harvard will be tangling Dartmouth. And that makes matters worse for either game shapes up as something very worth while, and we, with our human limitations, must pass up one to see the other. Why, oh why did not Conan Doyle give us the low down on splitting assignments between our astral and physical selves?

Yes, we have a sneaking suspicion that both Dan Edmonds and Boston College will stage real comebacks this week and although both will not win these respective battles against the potential claimants of the eastern championship, we predict, with confidence, they will force Harvard and Lafayette as pedlers has been forced this season and if granted a breaks or two in fortune may ease into victory.

Dartmouth Did Look Rather Woeful Against Vermont Array

Dartmouth did look rather woeful against Vermont a array of stars athletes. Its faults and mistakes would fill a volume, but fairest was its defensive work. It did not permit the very strong Vermont attack to cross its goal line and indeed was unable to attack it would have scored. Neighborhood 11 for unpenalized interference with a forward pass receiver in one instance and heedlessness and foul y execution in another.

To what extent the Green's failure is chargeable to over confidence and poor coaching is a matter for debate. Dartmouth's system entered the game expecting to win by at least three touchdowns via the route Vermont had followed many a considered a real threat was Carl Hock it did not know that Tom Kendall's teams have been pulling fancy forward passes on for in those many years and that is Keddy's custom to call out his ends when once the game and build rest awaken to that fact until very late in the game.

Given Instructions to Employ Only Its Simplest Plays

He must of that nonconfidence it was went into the game with instructions to employ only a couple of plays and was not permitted to monkey with the ball. It was too late, and because of the poor job of scouting covered and backed Carl Beck had did not stop Coach Jumbo Kendall considered his best back but Johnson whom heads considers the superior of Beck and must use. And then into the game did Dartmouth run lack a Vermont punt.

There will be no reversal of form on the Green team this week and the Harvard team has been known to have scouted intelligently the makeup of the foregoing nature should not occur.

However, changes must be made and probably have been made in the Dartmouth lineup

"Swede" Swenson Looks But Is Not a Football Player.

For two years Coach Cannell and his aides have been endeavoring to make a football player of "Swede" Swenson. "Swede" looks the part and carries 204 pounds at brawn in the big uniform, but he has not a football player and undoubtedly will be seen in the Harvard game only in dire emergency. Taylor, the other guard, is another hubnetic regular who passes from that status to the role of substitute.

Bowsher, veteran quarter back in a third whose play has set in impress and followers. And even Chuck Barnes the Dartmouth captain, may not start the Harvard game for injuries have hampered him all season and in his first real start, against Vermont he appeared the most impressive halfback employed by the Green in the course of the afternoon.

Ambrunich, a tackle, and Sweetser, a sub two may be regarded as square fair and Richard of Harvard and Miss Ingraham, the latter's generals, has start at quarterback and Red Lee who did not see the Vermont game may as some Hooker's position and either Gerdes or Dutch will take Ambrunich's tackle position

They With Six Others Will Make Up the Eleven Saturday

This week Seidenger, Moore Lynch Lackman Harris and Cahill probably will make up the seven to start the fray, and I is the short space intervening before the game Cannell and his assistants can whip them into shape, as the Harvard team was whipped into shape between the Middlebury and Holy Cross games, the Green should give an excellent account of itself on Saturday.

Dartmouth has a nice forward pass day, and it said to have a few running plays of real attacking. One of the weakness in the Hanover system this year has come from attempts to teach the men too many plays and the consequent failure of the team to learn and execute any one play perfectly. Undoubtedly the team will be drilled and polished in the fundamental of back formations and of three basic formations and if they have the strength reported and are perfectly executed they should worry Harvard quite considerably.

Has Displayed Seemingly Pronounced Weakness in Subs

If Harvard had continued to display the form it showed in the Holy Cross contest the cry of hope that is Dartmouth's would be out of key a dark chant. But the Crimson has not continued on that high plane while in addition its recent lustrous performance seemingly pronounced weakness in substitute material.

To get a versatile attack Harvard has been forced to weaken its secondary defense by pushing Crowell and Churchill into broken field runners are good defensive men, while Owen Gehrke-Corburn combination is a trio of excellent defensive men, none of whom can dance through a broken field with the ease that is desired

And the Harvard wing situation is not the best, particularly since Hartley has been injured. The Crimson tackles and Harvard's system of waiting and play, has somewhat covered up that weakness defensively, while the weight and strength of Harvard's No. 1 and No. 2 backs somewhat compensate for the offensive weakness of the Crimson wings

However some team must show up these deficiencies and why not Dartmouth?

BOSTON COLLEGE NOT IN SUCH BAD SHAPE

With the exception of Kosiowski and Kelleher, the Boston College football team is none the worse after the Detroit contest. All the players were bruised, more or less, by the powerful attacks of the Red and White line, but the team is in better shape than early dispatches from the flivver city seemed to indicate

The Eagles arrived in Boston yesterday afternoon and were the guests of the Junior Class at the annual home night held at Boston College No practice was held, but intensive work for the game with Lafayette on Saturday, will begin at Aumal Field this afternoon

Although Coach Cavanaugh does not believe that there is any glory in defeat, those who witnessed the Eagles' desperate fight against heavy odds last Saturday are loud in their praise of the B. C. eleven, and Detroit papers declared Saturday's game to have been one of the finest exhibitions of football given in Detroit for many seasons.

This is regarded as a high tribute to the fighting qualities of Cavanaugh's men, as Detroit University has met some of the strongest Western elevens in the past few years.

The Boston College players are not discouraged because of the defeat and feel that if the "breaks" of the game came to them the outcome would have been different.

Darling, As Usual, Played Brilliant Game

Darling, as usual played a brilliant game. His long punts always meant an advantage to Boston, and with Comerford and Heaphy down the field with the ball Detroit only once ran back a punt for any substantial gain

Heaphy, Comerford and Koslowski shone by their work in the Boston College line Until he was put out of the game with a dislocated shoulder, Koslowski played the greatest game of his career. Heaphy discarded the special helmet he had to protect his injured eye after the first play and then fought like a madman

Donoghue played an excellent game as guard and will probably hold to the post beside Heaphy in the Lafayette game.

Keahane Will Be Shifted Back to Tackle

Owing to Koslowski's injury, Keahane will be shifted back to tackle.

Although Koslowski's loss will be felt, the Eagle line will not be so weak with Keahane and Donoghue at his tackle and guard

Wilson's work in both the game in Kelleher's place merits him a position on any all star team selected next Saturday. Wilson, a light, but possesses remarkable speed He is an exceptionally good broken field runner, and ask not Lafayette speed may prove more valuable than weight against a heavy line

All practice sessions at the Tech wrestle Heights this week will be secret and several new formations will be tried out for Saturday's game. As Lafayette is reported developing an aerial attack, much practice in breaking up their open game will doubtless be given

LYNAH AND NASHE IN CONCORD TENNIS WIN

John K. Lynah and Leif Nashe won the doubles tennis championship of Concord. They defeated Stedman Buttrick, Jr., and Frederick W. Pratt, in two straight sets, 6—4, 6—4. WIGGINS IS HERE FOR TUNNEY GO

"Chuck" Wiggins, Indianapolis light heavyweight, who clashes with Gene Tunney, former champion of the world at Mechanics Building Friday night, has arrived in Boston. He is accompanied by Joe Golden, his manager.

"Red" Chapman, the Westerner decided to come Friday night, the Westerner decided to come to Boston early

"It's always better to be on hand early and show the fans that you're serious," said Wiggins.

Wiggins still contends that he will hand out a huge surprise when he meets Tunney. He does not fear the punching ability of the New Yorker and he says that he'll be on top at the finish.

Wiggins is another fighter of the type of Harry Greb. He is fast and clever and mighty difficult to hit.

Red Chapman of Rochester, clashes with Willie Corbett of Canada in the semi final.

Frankie Jerome of Everett and Johnny Fox of Woburn will also meet while Tommy French of Brookline meets Al Sears of East Boston.

3 Rs Give Way to H Rs in New Baseball School

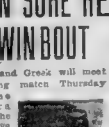
Los Angeles, Cal., Oct., 24.—Ground has been broken at Burbank, a suburb, for a baseball school, which will open its first term on January 10. It will be known as the National College of Baseball. The purpose of the school is to train young ball players in the fine points of the game, three months being required to finish the course. Acting instructors will be "Death Valley" Jim Scott, Sam Crawford, Frank (Cap) Dillon, George (Rube) Elles, Walter Boles, Jerry Downs, Jess W. Orndorf and George Wheeler.

Frank Chance.

Frank L. Chance, former manager of the Chicago Club of the National League, will be connected with the college in an advisory capacity.

RUSSIAN SURE HE WILL WIN BOUT

A Russian and Greek will meet in a wrestling match Thursday night at the Grand Opera House and the Greek will have to be at his best as Ivan Michaloff says that he will toss Kotsonaros in short order. This is a return match as the last time they met the Greek won by a flying mare and Michaloff is out for revenge.



Ivan Michaloff

"It will be a different story," he says

The Russian really forced Kotsonaros into this match and he has been hot on his trail for several days. Both are in superb form and training faithfully so a speed match is sure to be seen from the moment Sam sets in calls time It will be the best two falls in three to a pose, no finish

Another big match will introduce Stanley Stasiak, the Polish Hercules, who meets Mike Perelli the Italian Giant. This battle of two big fellows will be a humdinger affair. Stasiak weighs around 240 pounds and stands over six feet in height and a bear for work

The opening event will bring together Joe Perelli, the Italian wildman, and Frank Lurich, the Lithuanian light heavyweight. Lurich beat him at the Arena a short time ago but Perelli claims that he will be in better shape and will topple the Cambridge lad in a jiffy.

ANOTHER SCHOOL TWIN BILL AT WIGWAM

The shrill cries of the quarterback will resound again today at Praves Field when four well-balanced elevens meet at the Wigwam Dorchester High, in its first league game, meets Coach Murray's English High boys, and Brighton High tackles Hyde Park in what is expected to be a real battle contest for honors in the District High League

English High is not up to the standard of former years The team won the championship last fall but few expect the Blue and Blue aggregation to repeat. Dorchester showed more power in playing Groton than English High did. They may play an inspired game on the gridiron.

Hyde Park has a scrappy eleven. It is not endowed with the stars as the Brighton team, but hopes to show to their best for this match. McKenney and Lyon, in the Brighton backfield are a pair hard to equal. They have been the real stars in high school grid circles for three years.

NEW TEAMS FOR RETAIL LEAGUE

Although the Wm. Filene's Sons Co. have already

The Store League opened its second season R. H. White and Kenney's failed to put a team on the alleys this year, and Secretary Harold McNulty has been busy filling their places.

Two new teams are the Summerfield's and the E. E. Gray Co. With a dozen teams slated to display their wares on the alleys this season, plenty of action and excitement will reign at the weekly matches.

The following teams are in the league, Higgins Kennard, Chandler & Co., Wm. Filene's Sons Co., Gilchrist's, Houghton & Dutton, C. F. Hovey, Jordan Marsh, Summerfield's, Wm. Leavitt Co., Foster, Adams & Gibbs, Thayer McNeil and S. E. Gray.

FLAHERTY POST WILL HOLD AMATEUR SHOW

The Lieutenant Lawrence J. Flaherty Post No. 10, American Legion of East Boston, will conduct its second amateur open boxing meet of the season November 17, in New Columbus Hall (formerly Sumner Hall) Maverick square, East Boston.

There will be five classes, at 112, 115, 125, 135 and 147 pounds. Entrants may register at the headquarters of the Flaherty Post in East Boston every evening with Comrade [illegible] after November 15.

JEWELRY LEAGUE ROLLS TONIGHT

Captain Joseph Lipp of the Lenox Jewelry Co. bowling team is looking forward to a victory this evening over the Smith Patterson Co. team. The jewelry men have organized quite a snappy league and are delivering with plenty of action in their weekly engagements

Joseph Lipp.

The other teams to battle are D. C. Percival & Co. vs. Bigelow, Kennard & Co., Ripley, Howland Mfg Co. vs. A. Stowell & Co., Shreve, Crump & Low Co. vs. Hodgson, Kennard & Co., the E. B. Horn Co. vs. I. Alberts Sons, Thomas Long Co. vs. Harkins, Kurby & Murphy.

SAILOR BYRON BEATS JIMMY FRUZETTI

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 24.—Sailor Byron of Worcester carried the fight to Jimmy Fruzetti of Brockton in six of the ten rounds at Mechanics' Hall here and won the decision and the lightweight championship of New England.

The fighting was fast throughout. Fruzetti took the second, fourth and eighth frames, and earned an even break in the tenth.

In the fifth he was punched drunk and groggy from Byron's trip hammer right. He failed to take advantage of Byron's openings as the milling grew furious

In the semi-final a hurricane finish by Pete Casey of Worcester landed him the decision over Billy Shannon of Lynn.

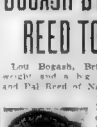
BOGASH BATTLES REED TONIGHT

Lou Bogash, Bridgeport [illegible] weight and a big Boston favorite and Pal Reed of Natick [illegible] to throw a little light on the middleweight situation when they battle in a twelve-round bout at the Pioneer Club of New York tonight. Bogash and Reed were among the chosen eight middleweights named by the illustrious New York Boxing Commission



Lou Bogash, to battle for the crown held by Johnny Wilson

Reed has a victory to his credit over Bogash. Lou has also passed Pal around. Therefore tonight's bout should be interesting.

George Carter and Mike Criss will be in Reed's corner tonight. A young man by the name of Smith will direct Bogash.

When the New York tournament of middleweights is over Wilson will still be champion. Tough on the New York Commish.

SEARCH CONTINUED TODAY FOR ALBERT J. Dailey, who was beaten up and ejected from a Huntington avenue flat when he entered and posed as a policeman. He is being sought with a default warrant. The cast was four chorines and two chorus men. Three of the girls who witnessed the row are Florence Dillon, standing, Sibil Stuart (top), and Maris Chaney. The chorus men threw Dailey down the stairs and into the arms of a real policeman when he failed to produce credentials. The girls screamed.

"THE TRAFFIC IS SO HEAVY IT SHAKES THE PLASTER FROM OUR Homes!" That is the vigorous and general cry set up by residents of Carruth and Bushnell streets, Dorchester, when they learned of the attempt to make both of these thoroughfares two way streets. A protest against the plan has already been made by them to the street commissioners. Old residents complain bitterly at the heavy automobile trucking, even as late as midnight, on the way to Providence and Brockton. They also complain of "noisy cursing truckmen."

World-Famous Story of the All-Conquering Power of Love Over the Heart of the Wilful and Beautiful Sister of the Autocratic King Henry VIII.

"My Turn to Ask Forgiveness," Said Brandon

This famous story has been created into a superlative photoplay by Cosmopolitan Productions, direction of Robert G. Vignola. It is released as a Paramount picture.

By Charles Major

MARY also knew that speaking a thought vitalizes it and gives it force; so, although she could not deny herself the pleasure of being near him, of seeing him, and hearing the tones of his voice, and now and then feeling the thrill of an accidental touch, she had enough good sense to know that a mutual confession, that is taking it for granted Brandon loved her, as she felt almost sure he did, must be avoided at all hazards. It was not to be thought of between people so far apart as they. The brink was a delightful place, full of all the sweet ecstasies and thrilling joys of a seventh heaven, but over the brink—well there should be no "over," for who was she? And who was he? Those two dreadfully stubborn facts could not be forgotten, and the gulf between them could not be spanned; she knew that only too well. No one better.

Brandon answered her question: "I do not know about going; I think I shall. I have volunteered with a ship that sails in two or three weeks from Bristol, and I suppose I shall go."

"Oh, no! do you really mean it?" It gave her a pang to hear that he was actually going, and her love pulsed higher; but she also felt a sense of relief, somewhat as a conscientious house-breaker might feel upon finding the door promptly locked against him. It would take away a temptation which she could not resist, and yet dared not yield to much longer.

"I think there is no doubt that I mean it," replied Brandon. "I should like to remain in England until I can save enough money out of the king's allowance to pay the debt against my father's estate, so that I may be able to go away and feel that my brother and sisters are secure in their home—my brother is not strong—but I know it is better for me to go now, and I hope to find the money out there. I could have paid it with what I lost to Judson before I discovered him cheating." This was the first time he had ever alluded to the duel, and the thought of it, in Mary's mind, added a faint touch of fear to her feeling toward him.

She looked up with a light in her eyes and asked: "What is the debt? How much? Let me give you the money. I have so much more than I need. Let me pay it. Please tell me how much it is and I will hand it to you. You can come to my rooms and get it or I will send it to you. Now tell me that I may, Quickly." And she was alive with enthusiastic interest.

"There now! you are kind—again; as kind as ever you can be. Be sure, I thank you, though I say it only once," and he looked into her eyes with a gaze she could not stand even for an instant. This was growing dangerous again, so, catching himself, he turned the conversation back into the bantering vein.

"Ah! you want to pay the debt that I may have no excuse to remain? Is that it? Perhaps you are not so kind after all."

"No! not you know better. But let me pay the debt. How much is it and to whom is it owing" Tell me at once, I command you."

"No! no! Lady Mary, I cannot."

"Please do, I beg—if I cannot command. Now I know you will; you would not make me beg twice for anything!" She drew closer to him as she spoke and put her hand cosyingly upon his arm. With an irresistible impulse he took the hand in his and lifted it to his lips in a lingering caress that could not be mistaken. It was all so quick and so full of fire and meaning that Mary took fright, and the princess, for the moment, came uppermost.

"Master Brandon!" she exclaimed sharply, and drew away her hand. Brandon dropped the hand and moved over on the seat. He did not speak, but turned his face from her and looked out of the window toward the river. Thus they sat in silence, Brandon's hand resting listlessly upon the cushion between them. Mary saw the eloquent movement away from her and his speaking attitude, with averted face; then the princess went into eclipse, and the imperial woman was ascendant once more. She looked at him for a brief space with softening eyes, and lifting her hand, put it back in his, saying:

"There it is again—if you want it."

Want it? Ah! this was too much! The hand would not satisfy now; it must be all, all! And he caught her to his arms with a violence that frightened her.

"Please don't, please! Not this time. Ah! have mercy, Charl—Well! There! . . . There! . . . Mary mother, forgive me." Then her woman spirit fell before the whirlwind of his passion, and she was on his breast with her white arms around his neck, paying the same tribute to the little blind god that he would have exacted from the lowliest maiden of the land. Just as though it were not the blood of fifty kings and queens that made so red and sweet, aye, sweet as nectar thrice distilled, those lips which now so freely paid their dues in colored blue.

Brandon held the girl for a moment or two, then fell upon his knees and buried his face in her lap.

"Heaven help me!" he cried

She pushed the hair back from his forehead with her hand and as she fondled the curls, leaned over him and softly whispered.

"Heaven help us both; for I love you!"

He sprang to his feet. "Don't! don't! I pray you," he said wildly, and almost ran from her.

Mary followed him nearly to the door of the room, but when he turned he saw that she had stopped, and was standing with her hands over her face, as if in

He went back to her and said: "I tried to avoid this, and if you had helped me, it would never—" But he remembered how he had always despised Adam for throwing the blame upon Eve, no matter how much she may have deserved it, and continued: "No; I do not mean that. It is all my fault. I should have gone away long ago. I could not help it; I tried. Oh! I tried."

Mary's eyes were bent upon the floor, and tears were falling over her flushed cheeks, unheeded and unchecked.

"There is no fault in any one; neither could I help it," she murmured.

"No, no; it is not that there is any fault in the ordinary sense; it is like suicide or any other great, self-inflicted injury with me. I am different from other men. I shall never recover."

"I know only too well that you are different from other men, and—and I, too, am different from other women—am I not?"

"Ah, different. There is no other woman in all the wide, long world," and they were in each other's arms again. She turned her shoulder to him and rested with the support of his arms about her. Her eyes were cast down in silence, and she was evidently thinking as she toyed with the lace of his doublet. Brandon knew her varying expressions so well that he saw there was something wanted, so he asked:

"Is there something you wish to say?"

"Not I," she responded with emphasis on the pronoun.

"Then is it something you wish me to say?"

She nodded her head slowly. "Yes."

"What is it? Tell me and I will say it."

She shook her head slowly. "No."

"What is it? I cannot guess."

"Did you not like to hear me say that—that I—loved you?"

"Ah, yes; you know it. But—do you wish to hear me say it?"

The head nodded rapidly two or three times: "Yes." And the blue curving lashes were lifted for a fleeting, luminous instant.

"It is surely not necessary; you have known it so long already. I am only too glad to say it. I love you."

She nestled closer to him and hid her face on his breast.

"Now that I have said it, what is my reward?" he asked—and the far face came up, red and rosy with rewards," any one of which was worth a king's ransom.

"But this is worse than charity," cried Brandon, as he almost pushed her from him. "I can never belong to each other never"

"No," said Mary, with a despairing shake of her head, as she began to flew again; "no, never. And falling upon his knees, caught both her hands to h against his face and rest fro the room.

Her words showed him t chasm anew. She saw the distan between them even better than s Evidently it seemed farther low ing down than looking up. The was nothing left now but flight.

He sought refuge in his own apartments and wildly walked the floor, exclaiming, "I—I feel that I am to lay up this story of sorrow to last me all my days. Why did I ever come to this country? God pity me—pity me!" And he fell upon his knees at the bed, burying his face in his arms, his mighty man's frame shaking as with a palsy.

DAILY SHORT STORY—DAISY CHAIN

By Ruth Logan.

FATHER SAID YOU'D STEAL THE PENNIES OFF A DEAD MAN'S EYES

"AND what else did your father say?" asked the gray haired man in the fan-backed chair as he sat watching the child at his feet make a daisy chain of the blossoms she had picked coming across the fields.

Father said you'd steal the pennies off a dead man's eyes. Do dead men have pennies on their eyes?"

"Not usually. So I'm a thief, am I? I must say your father is complimentary."

"He didn't mean to be, I'm sure" continued the girl. "He hates you like everything Mother too."

On and on she chattered, unconscious of the man's power to take the roof from over her head. The absolute honesty of eleven was pouring itself out to the gentle voiced urging and prompting of the man who ruled the countryside.

"Speaking of pennies, maybe you'd like to play a game I know." The man brought out some small change and selected the coins she had referred to so frequently. "Now you toss your penny in the air and if it comes up heads I'll give you this one."

It came up heads and the girl reached out a greedy hand for the mate in the man's palm. She proved to be lucky on several more tosses and the supply of pennies was exhausted. "Now we'll play with the piece." The man circled a dollar with his thumb and forefinger. "By the way, what is your name?"

"Helen. They call me Nell."

"Very well, Nell. You toss the dollar." She obeyed him. Without looking he said, "You are a lucky little girl, Nell. That's yours."

A dirty little hand reached out and claimed it. At the same time the child's foot caught in the daisy chain and tore it apart. With no thought to the money she began mending her broken plaything.

"What will you take for that?" the man asked softly.

"You can have it," she said generously, and she placed it across the knees that were covered with a heavy rug. At the same time she dropped all the coins in his lap.

"But those are yours," he insisted. "You won them."

Reluctantly she counted the pennies and then dropped them into the little pocket of her apron. "Here is the dollar. I wouldn't dare take that."

"You must, Nell. I always pay my gambling debts."

"What is the matter with you that you can't walk?" she asked suddenly.

"Rheumatism. Doctors can't help me." His faced lined as he tried to move in the big chair.

Suddenly the child sprang to her feet. Without a word she darted away, the man's eyes following her as she fled across the field and up the hill in the direction of her humble home.

"Maybe I ought to do something for Hodges since he has such a fine little girl. Perhaps his wife isn't a bad sort, either. I'll give them that farm, by George"

An hour later, with the aid of his secretary and a lawyer from town, who was stopping at the Oaks over the week-end, James Worthington had conveyed to one Silas Hodges and wife a deed to the land they lived on. A knock at the door sent Miss Sturgis to answer the knock of Nell to see The Man. In one hand she carried a quart jar wrapped in paper. In the other she held the dollar and the pennies.

"This is from my mother," she said eagerly. "It'll cure you. She cured Aunt Ruth with it when he was down in bed. She makes it herself. Swamp roots and things like that. Honest, it will cure you. All you have to do is to take a tablespoonful of it three times a day. And please take the money. Mother

A MODEL FOR SERVICE AND PROTECTION

4163. This "easy to make" apron model is nice in unbleached muslin with facings of contrasting material, or, in gingham, chintz or percale. The side seams are free below the hips, but if preferred may be closed their entire length.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 4¾ yards of 27-inch material.

A BECOMING APRON "DRESS"

3968. This "slip on" apron may well serve as a dress—it has such pleasing lines, is trim and neat, envelopes the figure most protectingly. The new prints and crétonnes are nice for this style, as is also percale and sateen.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size will require four yards of 36-inch material.

A DAINTY APRON

Pattern 3254 is here depicted. It is cut in three sizes: Small, medium and large. A medium size will require 2½ yards of 36-inch material.

For this pretty model one could have lawn or cambric, finished with embroidery or braid, or dotted Swiss, dimity or linen, with lace embroidery or braid. Gingham percale, sateen and alpaca are also good materials for this style. The bib and straps may be omitted.

A PRACTICAL OUTFIT

Pattern 3505 is here illustrated. It is cut in 4 sizes: 6 months to 1 year, 2, 3 and 4 years. A 1-year size will require 1⅜ yard for the dress, 1⅛ yard for the petticoat and ⅝ yard for drawers of 36-inch material.

Muslin, cambric, nainsook and lawn are good for all of the designs here portrayed. The dress may also be of silk, henrietta, albatross, pique, gingham or chambray, and the drawers of domet flannel.

A COMFORTABLE FROCK

4032. This will be pretty in dimity or chintz, as well as in voile or batiste. The sleeve may be finished in wrist or elbow length.

The pattern is cut in five sizes: 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. A 4-year size requires 2½ yards of 36-inch material.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12 cents in silver or stamps.

A SMART FROCK

3988. A very new and attractive version of the one-piece dress is here portrayed. The outstanding loop effect at the waistline is youthful and becoming. The sleeve may be in wrist or elbow length. This is a good model for linen, ratine or sponge.

The pattern is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 4½ yards of 36-inch material. The width at the foot is about two yards.

A POPULAR UNDER GARMENT

4067. Pretty lingerie is ever so more attractive when home made, and at the present time, one has choice of many suitable materials. As illustrated, radium silk and black satin bands are combined, with a fine lattice trimming of black silk thread.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 3⅜ yards of 27-inch material.

A FROCK FOR MANY OCCASIONS

3965. Here is a simple, youthful design—a one-piece model, with draped panels that may be omitted. The dress is in "slip on" style. It lends itself well to the new crepe weaves, as well as to handkerchief linen, taffeta and gingham. Plain and figured foulard will be nice for this.

The pattern is cut in three sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. An 18-year size requires 7½ yards of 36-inch material. The width at the foot is about two yards.

MAN AND MAID, by Elinor Glyn

By Elinor Glyn

ALATHEA went straight to the piano and began to play. It seemed as though she were talking, telling me of the passion in her soul. She played weird Russian dances and crashed agonizing chords, then she played laments and finally a soft song of love. No one of McDowell's and every note had formed an echo in me, and I had followed, it almost seemed, all her pain.

"You play divinely, child," I said, when she had finished.

"Yes," and her voice was quite weak, while she helped me with my crutch, and I went to the door of my room.

"I would like you to wear nice soft teagowns. My eye gets so wearied with everything bright after a while. I hope you have got all you want, and that your room is comfortable?

"Yes, thanks."

I bowed and went on into my room and shut the door. Burton was waiting to help me to lie down.

"It has been a very tiring day for you, Sir Nicholas," he said, "and for her ladyship also."

"Go and have a rest yourself, Burton, you have been up since cock crow, the new man Antoine can call me at five." And soon I was in a land of blissful dreams.

Of course it was the very irony of fate that Suzette should have selected this very afternoon to come to and thank me for the villa which she was just now going down to see——

Antoine opened the door to her while Burton was out. I heard afterwards that she told him she had an appointment with me when he had hesitated about letting her in. She was quite quietly dressed and had no great look of the demi-monde, and a new footman, blunted with war service, was probably impervious even to the very strong scent which she was saturated with—that perfume which I had never been able entirely to cure her liking for, and which she reverted to using always when she went away from me, and to be corrected of again and again when she returned.

Antoine came to my room by the passage, and said, "a lady was in the salon to see me by appointment."

For a moment I was not suspicious. I thought it might be Coralie, and fearing Alathea might be somewhere about, and it might be awkward for her, I hastened to rise and go in to see and get rid of the inopportune guest. I told Antoine he must never let anyone in again without permission.

It was just growing dim in the salon, about half-past four o'clock, and a figure rose from the sofa by the fire as I entered.

"Mon choux—mon petit cher!" I heard, simultaneously with a softly closing sound of the door behind the screen, which masks the entrance to the room from the hall—Antoine leaving I supposed at the time, probably it was Alathea I surmised afterwards!

"Suzette!" I exclaimed angrily. "Why do you come here?"

She flew to me and held out her arms, expressing affection and grateful thanks. She had come for no other reason only just to express her friendly appreciation! To get rid of her was all I desired. I never was more angry, but to show it would have been the poorest game. I did not tell her it was my wedding day. I just said I was expecting some relatives, and that I knew he would understand and would go at once.

"Of course," she said, and shook me by the hand. I was still standing with my crutch. She was passing to see her cousin Madame Angier, in the flat above, and could not resist the temptation to come in.

"It must be the very last time, Suzette," I said. "I have given you all that you wanted, and I would rather not see you again."

She pouted, but agreed, and I drew her to the door and saw her into the corridor, and even followed her to the front door. She was chatting all the time. I did not answer. I was speechless with rage, and could have sworn aloud, when at last I heard the door shut between us, then I strode back into my room, praying that Alathea had been unaware of my visitor.

Nemesis, on one's wedding day!

I waited until five and then went back into the sitting room to my chair, and Antoine brought in the tea and turned on the lights, and a moment or two afterwards Alathea came in. Her eyes were stony, and as she advanced up the room she sniffed the air disgustedly, her fine nostrils quivering. Suzette's pungent perfume was no doubt still present to one coming from outside!

Haughty, contempt and disgust, expressed themselves in my little darling's blue eyes. There was nothing to be said—qui s'excuse s'accuse——!

She wore a soft lavender frock, and was utterly delectable and when I reflected that but for this impassable barrier, which my own action in the past had been the means of erecting between us, I might now have made her love me and that on this, our wedding day, she might have been coming into my arms, I could have groaned aloud.

"May I open the window," she said with the air of an offended empress.

"You do, open it wide," and then I laughed aloud cynically. I could so easily have cried.

Alathea would not, of course, have spoken about her suspicions, to do so would have inferred that she took an interest in me beyond that of a secretary; every improvision she always has given me is that nothing in my life can matter to her one jot. But I know that this affair of Suzette does matter to her, that she resents it bitterly, that it is the cause of her smouldering anger with me. She resents it because she is a woman, and how I wish I might believe that it is because she is not as indifferent towards me as she pretends.

She poured out the tea. I expect my face looked like the devil, I did not speak. I knew I was frowning angrily. A rising wind blew the curtain out and banged the window. She got up and shut it, then she threw some cedar dust on the fire from the box which it is kept in on a table near. She had seen Burton do this no doubt. I love the smell of cedar burning.

Then she came back and poured out the tea and I we both drank it silently.

The room looked so comfortable and homelike, with its panelling of old pitch pine, cleaned of its paint and mellowed and waxed, so that it seems like deep amber, showing up the greyish pear-wood carvings. One might have been in some room in old England of about 1699. Everything looked the setting for a love scene.

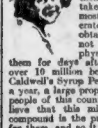
Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxatives

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way



THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people of this country must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; cool-tar drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and griping.

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and has been satisfactorily sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not produce a habit, and increased doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a health safeguard. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. J. W. Borroughs of Little Rock, Ark., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. Enos S. Costa of Watsonville, Cal., whose family uses it regularly. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, pales, headaches, sallow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs only about a cent a dose!

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are using themselves. "If you can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use without complaint." I will gladly send a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an accurate test. Write me today and mail it. Address Dr. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

"If everybody could experience the benefits of Mentho-Laxene just once, there would not be much of any other cough medicine sold".

Another one writes: "It's the best ever sold for a bad cough or cold!"

It costs less than ½ cent a dose. It contains no chloroform or opiates of any kind. It is composed of Menthol, Wild Cherry bark, Tolu, Cascara, Oriendalis—all powerful blended to make the Essence Mentho-Laxene 600 percents stronger than ordinary cough and cold syrups. It is mildly laxative, antiseptic, tonic—and not only relieves quickly, but aids in driving all cold and cough inflammation out of the system. You can mix the Essence Mentho-Laxene with sugar syrup, or honey, making a or you can take the pure essence in doses of 10 drops. Either way—it works quickly. A pint is equal to 8 to 12 bottles of ready made cough syrup, costing from $2.00 to $4.00. You save about $3.00—for you can make a pint for about 75 cts. Make a syrup and mix—that is all—no trouble—directions with each bottle.

Acute Coughs and Colds, old Chronic Coughs—Bronchial Asthma and Catarrh are promptly relieved when this pure, good, home-made medicine is used. Children don't "fight it". Best for aged folks. Made and used by Intelligent mothers—over 300,000 of them. Any good druggist can supply Blackburn's Essence Mentho-Laxene. Get a bottle of your druggist and make a pint—It's delicious.

"Loving mothers make it—children gladly take it".

Dear Sirs: The first dose of Mentho-Laxene given my daughter gave her very great relief, so we have used it steadily from that time on.

I have 12 children living: Three are married and two of them each have five children. They, too, now use Mentho-Laxene whenever they are attacked by colds or coughs. It has saved all of us many a doctor's bill, and much suffering.

FORBES' VIEWS on FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

The greatest money making machinery in the world is not to be found in Henry Ford's mammoth plants in Detroit, in Rockefeller's oil refineries, in the steel corporations throbbing city of Gary, or in all of the colossal General Motors factories.

The greatest money making machinery in the world weighs only a few ounces. And, thank the Lord, it has been gifted to us all.

It is the human brain.

But, like all machinery, it has to be operated before it can yield results. It has to be fed with raw material before it can produce. It has to be developed to the highest pitch of efficiency before it can produce to the maximum. Left neglected, it rusts, it deteriorates and ceases to function satisfactorily.

We don't expect a horse to pull a full load or a cow to give a full supply of milk unless fed.

But don't many of us expect our brains to yield full results even though we starve it? If we were to strap an arm in a sling and keep it there without exercising it, by and by it would become absolutely powerless, impotent, paralyzed. Yet do we take very much pains to see to it that our brains are thoroughly exercised, seeing that our brains also tend to become useless through disuse?

Some thought-generating comments are made on this subject by Herbert N. Casson, one of the most trenchant business writers in Britain. For example he says:

"A doctor once said that the average man is one half developed in body and one tenth developed in mind.

"Most people stop learning as soon as they get a job. Their school days are over at fourteen. At fourteen they fasten like limpets to some strong man or large company; and in this way they get pulled through. Most of the chair-a-bane of life there is only one driver to twenty or thirty passengers.

"This is true in every town as well as in every trade. There may be 100,000 people in the town, according to the census, but there are always about fifty men who do all the things and the planning.

"A man is content with a pay envelope, when he ought to be head of his department. He is content with a job, when he ought to have a career. He is content to support himself, when he might be one of the pillars of his trade."

Swift & Co.

To M. N. I., Waltham—It is doubtful if Swift & Co. has had recovery stock deserves. I see no reason why you should sell in this bull market at a loss. Interests in close touch with the company's situation expect Swift to show its dividend earned this fiscal year. This means 8 per cent. on $150,000,000 capital or $12,000,000. It will be recalled that Swift's reduction in surplus after dividends was nearly $30,000,000 in the fiscal year ended November 5, 1921, and nearly $7,000,000 in the year before that.

Houston Oil.

To Y. T., Batavia Street—Houston Oil strikes me as speculative. Hold on to your Atchison. Development of the lands of Houston Oil Company is expected to be conducted chiefly by Humble Oil & Refining Company, subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Though Standard Oil interests are said to have obtained control of 300,000 acres in southeast Texas, owned by Houston Oil, the latter retains a royalty interest in all production. Field brought in is at Hull, Tex. Headquarters will be maintained there, pending development of other areas.

Pacific Mail.

To T. Y., Hull.—Pushing through of subsidy would doubtless benefit Pacific Mail greatly. Condensed analyses of stock shows: Speculative equity issue. Earnings uncertain. Management satisfactory. Financial position can be improved. Outstanding $30,000 shares $5 par value. Only one class of stock. Assets $1,437,852, including $452,000 cash, $325,000 accounts receivable, $115,000 inventory, $203,000 claims, $167,000 due from other companies. Current liabilities $25,000, including $1,750 owing on bills payable, $200,000 reserve for doubtful accounts, $200,000 accounts payable. Surplus $3,031,000. Dividend passed. Resumption unlikely at this time.

Doheny Oils Feature Irregular New York Market; Money Is Off to 4 Per Cent.

STEEL RALLIES POINT FROM DAY'S LOW

Doheny oils started higher, then yielded most of their gains in an irregular but improving New York market. Money renewed at 4½ and dropped to 4 per cent. U. S. Steel was weak at the opening, but strengthened over a point from the day's low.

Announcement of bonus and new basis of exchange for conversion of Mex Pete into the Pan-Americans made the Dohenys a feature. Mex Pete spurted to 235, up 4¾, a new years high, after which it sagged.

Pan-Americans both opened at the same price. Their day's top was 84½, the initial prices. They then sold down.

Industrials were irregular and at one time weak. Studebaker was off at 125¾. Standard Oil of California, United Fruit and Corn Products were off more than 2 points.

National Lead, American Locomotive and Republic Steel lost more than 2.

Heavy Selling Sends U. S. Securities Off

Heavy selling of U. S. government securities, all of which declined 1 or 2% during the day, was the outstanding development in the New York bond market. Heaviest losses were sustained in the second and fourth 4¼s, which were down 28 and 22 cents, respectively.

French bonds continued to reflect the weakness in Paris exchange, Belgian 6s dropping 1¾; Franco-American 7½s, 1½; French 1s, 1¾, and City of France 7½s, 1. Brazil 7½s and Argentine 5s also lost a point.

Illinois Central refunding 4s gave way 2¾, Northern Pacific Western convertible 6s and Commonwealth Power 6s 1½, and Southern Railway general 4s, Seaboard Air Line adjustment 4s, Third Avenue adjustment 5s, Union Pacific refunding 4s, and Louisville & Nashville unified 4s a point each.

Boston Notes

CHILE COPPER, selling around 15, is about 150 per cent. above its low of last year.

CHILE COLLATERAL trust 7 per cent. bonds mature May 1, 1923. Up to maturity this $15,000,000 issue is convertible into stock at 125.

NEW RIVER COMPANY is said to be making fairly good profit on its present coal production.

U. S. WORSTED is getting into the full swing of the selling season and should be able to improve on backers well for reorganization.

UNITED DRUG is thought by many to be selling too low to be in line with its business betterment.

BOSTON & MAINE'S continued falling off in passenger traffic as compared with corresponding months last year is held to increase in autos and to textile difficulties.

NEW HAVEN has achieved a remarkable record in the general advance for its stock and bonds yet belief is that all will sell higher.

QUISSETT MILL stock, which recently gave out a rich bonus, now shows on the unlisted sheets with a 20-point spread between bid and asked, 240 bid.

WALTHAM WATCH preferred 9-point slump appeared unexpected, despite last week's frank announcement by the management.

FINISHED LEATHER prices stick disproportionately below hide prices.

GOVERNMENT'S $3,000,000 suit against Savage Arms is said to have been settled for $150,000. Suit was over loss on Lewis gun patents which depreciated after war.

HORNBLOWER & WEEKS—Continue to use railing for selling high-priced industrial stocks, and if you have already sold them do not repurchase.

HAVEN, STONE & CO.—Present upward movement probably has some time to go yet and many classes of stocks have so far participated in it only to a very limited extent.

PITTSFIELD BONDS BOUGHT IN BOSTON

Pittsfield has awarded $148,000 of various 4½ per cent. coupon bonds, maturing in each of years 1923 to 1947 inclusive, to Estabrook & Co., at 100.06. Other bidders were: F. S. Moseley & Co., 100.693; Old Colony Trust Co. and Edmunds Bros. jointly at 100.53; Harris Forbes & Co., 100.57; White, Weld & Co., 100.59; R. L. Day and Merrill, Oldham Co. jointly at 100.359; R. M. Grant & Co. 100.336; B. J. Van Ingen, 100.316; F. C. Peake, Pittsfield, 100.3159.

OPERETTA AT SHUBERT IS MELODIOUS

By FRED J. McISAAC, Dramatic Editor.

"The Rose of Stamboul," a Viennese operetta by Leo Fall, with additional numbers by Sigmund Romberg, and with a book and lyrics for the American stage by Harold Atteridge, was presented by the Shuberts at the Shubert Theatre last night.

This is one of the biggest, most artistic and most ambitious musical productions ever made by the Roberts, and it has the best score which has come across the water for several years. There are half a dozen exquisite melodies in the piece; the orchestration is a delight to the ear, after a surfeit of revues in which the drum and saxaphone do all the work.

STARS GOOD SINGERS.

Furthermore, the two leading members of the cast are gifted with unusual voices. Marion Green is a really great baritone, a singer of distinction and an actor of charm. Tessa Kosta possesses a lyric soprano of lovely quality and a vocal skill which is unusual outside of grand opera. Miss Kosta is a very indifferent actress, but acting is a secondary consideration in operetta.

When the piece was done at the Century in New York these singers had the support of Jack McGowan, an excellent baritone, and Mabel Withee, a girl with a lot of personality and some vocal gifts. Those parts are now in less capable hands.

James C. Barton, however, is still supplying the comedy and he never worked so hard in his life. Like most Viennese operettas, there isn't a lot of what we call comedy in the show, and Barton has had to build himself a role.

STORY SET IN HAREM.

The story of "The Rose of Stamboul" is set in a Turkish harem. It's a musical comedy harem, very loosely guarded. American tourists can get in and other strangers can get out. When the Turkish ladies are idling around, persons presumably eunuchs, why are they there, sing a bass as well as tenor.

Kendja, the heroine, is in love with an unknown poet and is betrothed to Achmed Bey, a Turkish noble. Achmed is really the unknown poet but he conceals his identity and as a result his bride nearly runs away from him. She reaches Vienna in the last act of the pursuit and all ends happy by The Rose of Stamboul.

The Parisian gowns of the last scene contrast very prettily with the profusion is exceedingly sumptuous.

Other Theatres

MODERN AND BEACON—A parade of photoplays that promises the happiest of combinations and provides the most satisfying of bills has presented at the Modern and Beacon Theatres yesterday. The program includes Rupert Hughes' "Remembrance" and Emory Johnson's melodrama, "In the Name of the Law." Mr. Hughes has struck upon a most popular theme though making the father of the girl the central figure of a sympathetic story. Mr. Johnson's production is one that is a long awaited champion of that valiant body of men who protect the lives and affairs of our communities.

STATE THEATRE—Wesley Barry, the freckled-faced boy star, completely captured the audiences at Loew's State Theatre yesterday by his remarkable work in his latest and best photoplay "Rags to Riches." a picture as full with its wholesomeness and spirit of adventure were a night to the heart. It is good clean comedy with the pranks of the mischievous Wes making for hundreds of laughs. "Rags to Riches" brings back in the days of boyhood and recovers the spirit of the times when one did things on a dare and wanted to emulate the heroes of our boyish fancies. The companion picture was also a real masterpiece and featured Mary Miles Minter in "The Fair Pretender." "Sure Fire Flint," a film adapted from the recent stage success of the same name.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—"The Ghost Breaker," a melodrama with modern trimmings, in which Wallace Reid is featured, was the offering at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday and proved to be one of the finest offerings in which that popular star has been seen in many months. There is a wonderful old Spanish castle which is peopled with ghosts, a lovely Spanish girl, who is much annoyed by the ghostly visitants; a young and red blooded hero, a funny colored servant, loud scenes and many other thrills. Lila Lee as the Spanish girl, was wonderful and the funny colored servant Wallace "Bing" proved a remarkable black-faced artist. The vaudeville bill was one of the best seen in the house for many a day and is headed by Little Lord Robert.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS — The Somerville Players did themselves proud yesterday by their exceptionally fine presentation of "Spring Magic," the remarkable play which proved so successful recently. The play serves as an excellent medium to display the excellent qualities of the members of this popular organization. Excellently pleasing was the work of Harry Bond in the difficult characterization of the principal role and equally noteworthy was that of Ann Hamilton, who played opposite him.

GLOBE THEATRE—William S. Hart, the great-est exponent of the Western plainsman on the screen, in "Border Wireless," proved a tremendous magnet to patrons of the Globe Theatre, on Washington Street, at every performance yesterday. The picture is replete with thrills and tense, exciting situations and the acting of Bill Hart superb.

'FOLLY TOWN' AT GAYETY

It is a pleasure to see a burlesque show like "Folly Town" at the Gayety Theatre this week. Audiences yesterday showed, by repeat of applause, their appreciation of the unusual merit of the company and the production itself.

There are seventeen song numbers, all melodious. One of them "Harvest Time," will probably be whistled all over town in a day or two, for it is of the big hit standard.

The girls are sweet to see and they dance with vim and pep. Evidently James E. Cooper, the producer, relieves in "ponies" as well as mediums, for the chorus contains several of the flapper type, each one as dainty as can be. And all the girls can dance anything the orchestra can play.

SCOLLAY SQ. OLYMPIA—Speed, comedy, action and drama, all merrily intertwined in a melange of six fast reels of action, was shown yesterday at Gordon's Scollay Sq. Olympia Theatre, when "Sure Fire Flint," featuring Johnny Hines, began a special week's engagement. The story is adapted from the story of that name as it appeared in the Ace High Magazine and written by Gerald C. Duffy.

Plays That Remain

SELWYN THEATRE—Last night marked the 160th performance for the all-colored musical success, "Shuffle Along" at the Selwyn Theatre, which has established itself as a huge hit in Boston.

TREMONT THEATRE—With the end of the "Little Nellie Kelly" engagement last night, the surge natural to the closing weeks, manifested itself at the Tremont Theatre last night.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Last night began the final week of the engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre, which has become quite a fixture in Rachel Crothers' comedy of smart set life, "Nice People."

COLONIAL THEATRE—Irving Berlin's Music Box Revue entered into the fourth week of its limited engagement at the Colonial Theatre yesterday with the plaudits of the usual capacity house.

WILBUR THEATRE—"The Bat" continues to draw capacity audiences to the Wilbur Theatre.

Irish Band Concert

A most original and interesting program has been arranged for the pipes by Pipe-Major Wrenholme when the Irish Regiment Band is heard here in concert at Symphony Hall, Sunday evening, Nov. 5. Such Irish favorites—so seldom heard in modern programe—as "The Cruiskeen Lawn," "The Rakes of Mallow, "The Sprig of Shillelagh" and "Rory O'More" will be heard.

REAL ESTATE HAPPENINGS

The colonial three-family dwelling at No. 5 Alvan terrace, Dorchester, has been conveyed by Elizabeth Kendrick to Frank Lennon, who buys for investment. The total assessed value is $11,000, of which $1,500 is on the land. J. A. Whalen & Company were the brokers.

Through the same office papers have gone to record in the sale of the three-family dwelling and 5,500 square feet of land to Dr. E. P. H. Morrissey, who purchased for investment. Simon Hornstein was the grantor. The tax valuation is $9,500, of which $1,900 is on the land.

The property at No. 6 Alvan terrace, Dorchester, has been sold by the Whalen office to James C. McKenzie. There is a three-family apartment house assessed at $11,000. The 4,000 square feet of land is taxed at $1,800.

BUILDING AT "SHADOWLAWN"

The development at East Milton, known as "Shadowlawn," is progressing rapidly. Nine houses have been completed and sold by Earle Morgan, who is in charge of the development. Six more houses are in various stages of construction, some of which are expected to be ready for occupancy before the snow flies. Plans are being prepared for several houses of the colonial and English Garden style for persons who purchased lots during the past week.

SALE IN ALLSTON

The brick building block at Nos. 334-342 Cambridge street, Allston, at the corner of Linden street, known as the Allen Building, has been sold by the New England Home for Little Wanderers to Thomas E. Dempsey, who buys for investment. The assessment for tax purposes is $19,106, of which $4,100 is on the 3,776 square feet of land. James H. Brennan was the broker.

COMPLETING HOMES AT MERRYMOUNT

Work is progressing rapidly on a number of new homes at Merrymount and it is expected that the majority of the houses now under construction will be ready for occupancy before real cold weather.

The ten-room residence of Walter G. Keefe on Squanto road is among those nearing completion. This property has a land area of 8,000 square feet.

George B. Gon'a is about to move into his new home on Victoria road. Frank J. Lally has just completed a nine-room house on Maypole road so as to cost of about $9,000. The six-room house at No. 12 Cedar Cross Ridgeway Drive, is nearing completion, and the home of Perley W. Cogrins on Algonquin road is about half completed.

Railroad Board a Failure

Creature of the Esch-Cummins Law Demonstrates Futility of Private Ownership of Railroads

Both the railroad executives and the employes agree that the Railroad Labor Board has failed of expectations.

Now comes the Associated Traffic Club of America to strike its blow at the War Labor Board. This Traffic Club's attitude toward railroad questions is reactionary enough for Rip Van Winkle himself. They propose to pass laws which prohibit strikes which would unify the great transportation systems, all of which amount practically to a granting of letters of mark and reprisal to the private managers of our railroad system.

But the interesting thing in the present situation is that all sides agree that the Esch-Cummins law under which the railroads were turned back by the government to their old private mismanagers is a complete, irredeemable failure. On that issue Senator Cummins' candidates in Iowa were badly beaten. Wherever the Esch-Cummins law, by which our government passed back the railroads to their old private mismanagers, has been an issue during the present primary election, the candidates who defended the Esch-Cummins law were beaten.

The Esch-Cummins law was hailed as the very last word on the subject of government regulation of the railroads. When that failed its advocates admitted that there was nothing left in the way of regulation which had not been tried and found wanting. It was the culmination of more than forty years' attempts to regulate our railroads. It was the Esch-Cummins law which set up the Railroad Labor Board to establish a liaison between the employer and employe and the government. It was the Esch-Cummins law which replied to the twenty-year contention of the railroads that their troubles lay in too much restriction on their profits and their right to do business by making the sky the limit for any charge which they might make.

Under the Esch-Cummins law the railroads received everything that they wanted. They availed themselves of their opportunity, and what good did it do them? They were in the doldrums in no time, for they ran into a freight jam from which they could not extricate themselves. Then they had to call on the government to take charge again and untangle the snarl. Then they raised their rates so high that it killed their own business and devastated great counties in the agricultural part of the country by raising the freight rates so that the agricultural products could not be shipped. Thus they killed their own business and reduced their income. Then they sought to contract out to private companies, whose officers were officers of the railroad, the repairing of their equipments, locomotives and freight cars at a potential loss of hundreds of millions.

When this was stopped by the government they turned to the task of exploiting railroad labor or deflating it, as they loved to call it. They have not succeeded in deflating labor, but they have succeeded in postponing the return of prosperity by the useless bringing on of a strike which caused the impairment of their equipment so that we must now face an approaching Winter with no coal in our bins, largely because the railroads are too crippled to transport the coal as fast as it can be mined.

How long shall we bear this burden of private management of our railroads? How long before we shall insist upon permanent government operation of our railroads?

Passing of Lloyd George

Not Unlikely Now That He Will Return to His Radical Principles

The spectacle of the Conservative party abandoning the leadership of David Lloyd George reminds us of that celegrated cartoon by Punch illustrating the abandonment by the Kaiser of Bismarck.

Punch represented the situation as a great ocean steamer with a captain at the rail bidding rather a stiff good-bye to the pilot who was going over the rail for his own little boat after having piloted the big ship out into the open water beyond the rocks and shoals.

But we cannot cruise always in clear water, as the Kaiser has learned, and as the Conservative party will learn before many months.

David Lloyd George is one of the most brilliant men now living. He was a great English radical before the war, loved by the English workingmen and the more advanced intellectuals. He probably yielded, or rather suspended, more of his personal principles in order to lead the Conservative body then they yielded of their own in order to be led by him.

It is not unlikely, now that the burden which repressed Mr. Lloyd George's radical principles has been lifted, that he will rededicate himself to their service. A great many of his friends have loyally contended that he has never abandoned his principles, but has merely held them in abeyance, awaiting fairer weather in which to launch them again. Let us hope so. Great Britain is a tremendous power for good or evil, and a powerful Englishman fighting for righteousness is always a world benefactor.

"Wizard" Steinmetz

We wonder how many people know that the great Steinmetz, who shares with Thomas A. Edison the reputation of being the greatest wizard of electricity the world has ever known and who is now the chief engineer of the General Electric Company, is running for State Engineer of New York on the Socialist ticket.

Doesn't this strike you as an interesting fact? What would this marvelous man do if he were elected Chief Engineer of New York State with its huge electric power developments still in its infancy?

We wonder if that lobe of his brain which permitted him to accept the Socialists' nomination is equal in quality with that lobe which produces such wonderful inventions and improvements—gifts to the world worth hundreds of millions?

Who knows? The things our fathers speered at as visionary yesterday, we accept as a matter of course today.

Are You Going to Be Led by the Nose?

They Are Killing the Bluebird

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

THE bluebird doesn't know it, but—with the help of Maeterlinck and by common consent—the bluebird has been made the symbol of happiness. We all want to be happy. So we all ought to learn how to catch and cage and domesticate the bluebird.

The quest of the bluebird is the cult of the ages. All persons everywhere yearn for joy. Even those who insist upon being miserable find deep satisfaction in their misery.

When you find folks hugging a grief to their hearts or refusing to let go of a disease, it is often because they actually find pleasure in their sorrow and even enjoy their illness.

When we realize how hungrily we all wish for happiness, it seems rather queer that we have made so little business in assuring a dependable supply.

It seems strange that so few of us have the habit of radiant happiness.

Almost it looks as though we do not really desire the happiness that we appear to wish for so deeply. And it is no wonder that we used to believe that the gods envied men and did not want them to be happy.

Many of our readers will recall the family tradition against doing anything joyful on the week-ly Sabbath. And we all know of the early Puritan prohibition of bear-baiting on Sunday—not out of pity for the poor bear, but lest the Puritan have any joy on the Sabbath.

Man is a curiously timid animal, anyhow, and does not dare to trust himself to the fulfilment of his natural desire to be happy.

And rightly; because we tend so readily to confuse the incidental means toward happiness with the inextinguishable spirit-need itself.

With this stupid mistake we commonly kill the bluebird.

For instance, we find that food gives us literally a great inner satisfaction—and we proceed to "feed the brute" inordinately. Result, indigestion.

And dyspepsia kills more happiness than just the joy in food.

It might be well, if we could guard and safeguard all our pursuit with such sanctions and sanctifications as are symbolized in marriage and its guardianship of the sex relation.

However, it is necessary that each of us develop practical wisdom in the cult of happiness.

For not even God can teach you how to catch that bluebird if you do not know that you hold it in your own hand.

Even then it must not be caged.

Bravery and Its Reward

Editor Boston American:

A short time ago a sergeant in the A. E. F. commandeered an automobile to chase a runaway horse dashing madly down the street, which he overtook and brought to a standstill within a few feet or some children playing in the gutter.

The story was published in the Boston American and also a sketch of the incident, and up to the present date the hero has not received either a word of thanks or a letter of commendation from the company whose horse he stopped.

It seems as if a corporation's reward for a deed of bravery is on a par with our government and its bonus. What's the use?

Employment Bureaus

Editor Boston American:

Recently I have observed in the columns of your paper various communications in regard to employment agencies in this city, and consider the time has now arrived when some comment should be made in this direction. Why should these "grafting" employment bureaus compel an unfortunate client, who possibly has been unemployed for many months, to pay them a whole week's hard earned pay for "service," when they can ill-afford to do so? During my tour of Great Britain this Summer, I found that in the large cities employment agencies are very few and far between. The Ministry of Labor, through its various agencies throughout the country, takes care of the unemployed, and no fees are necessary on either side. In one or two places where I have applied here the officials in charge adopted quite a Ku Klux Klan attitude, when I answered the question put to me regarding my religion.

Asia's Brain Power

Editor Boston American:

I have good reason for believing that the brain power of Asia (a wide term) is not inferior to that of any other portion of the globe. In ancient days it gave mankind the chief poets, the great prophets and the twelve Apostles. In fact, it was the home of the gods, Asgard and Asia, both meaning Godland. At the present time, the highest seat in all the European temples of learning is accorded to Sanskrit, the most perfect human speech. I have known bright-minded Westerners to study it for ten years and fail to conjugate its simplest kind of verb. Memory is the master faculty of the brain. M. H. NICKERSON.

Asiatic Brains Good

Editor Boston American:

A writer in your columns says that the smallest European country contains more brains than the whole of Asia. In our colleges and universities there are many Jews, Armenians, Chinese, Japanese, Hindoos, and other students of Asiatic origin. Ask the professors if they are not usually able to hold their own with their classmates of European and American descent, even though many of them are handicapped by a foreign language.

THE HELPING HAND

Baby Clothes Supplied

Editor Boston American:

Please send me the address of the party who wants baby clothes, as I have some to give away.

MRS. M. M. F.

Editor Boston American:

I have some babies' things to give away if I could get the address of some poor mother.

MRS. S. G. R.

ED. NOTE—The kind offers of Mrs. M. M. F. and Mrs. S. G. R. have been accepted, and two worthy women will receive the clothes.

Wants the Kittens

Editor Boston American:

My son and I would be grateful for two of the kittens offered by "A Lover of Animals." I will call for them.

MRS. L. E. K.

Editor Boston American:

I would be glad to get a nice male kitten, as I recently lost a beautiful Angora. I would give it a good home.

MRS. G. C.

ED. NOTE—The address of "A Lover of Animals" has been given the above two women.

Winter Coat Finds New Owner

Editor Boston American:

I have a Winter coat for a thirteen-year-old girl. Please let me know how I can get it to her.

M. W. R. L.

ED. NOTE—R. L. has been given the address of M. W. for the coat.

Invasion From Asia

By Gabriel Hanotaux

PARIS, Oct. 24.—The victory of the Turks raises the question of the relations between Europe and Asia, and this, quite naturally, involves a discussion on the origin of civilizations.

Historians have been pleased to divide the short time of conscious humanity into separate and distinct sections, as though they were independent one from the other: the Egyptian Age, the Babylonian Age, the Greek Age, the Roman Age, etc., in such fashion that the past is made to remain far away and mysterious, whereas it is but yesterday and the problems of the past are the problems of the present.

When the Phoenicians colonized the Mediterranean they raised the question of Asia's contact with Europe. When Asiatic Arabs founded Rome he continued the emphasis of this question; when the Christian religion, born in Judea, spread over the entire world, the problem was raised anew; when the Turks occupied Constantinople the question was exactly the same.

On the other hand, when Agamemnon commanded the Greek army before Troy, when Alexander pushed his expedition to the Ganges, when the Romans absorbed the Parthenians, when the Crusades founded a new kingdom of Jerusalem, when the Portuguese, Dutch and English and French colonizers set up their banks and their exchanges on the borders of Asia, the movement was produced in contrary sense—such are the balancing events of history.

If King Constantine had been an Alexander he would have joined the British in Mesopotamia, where there is reason to believe the course of history would have changed—at least for the moment, for each generation pridefully builds its pyramid only to leave, after it passes, a cenotaph.

There, then, is Asia, for a moment defeated, knocking again at the doors of Europe.

Is it the cycle swinging back again? Are we of this generation again to know the painful events which characterized Asia's previous attempts in history to invade Europe?

To solve the problem the diplomats are united. Whatever is said about them, they are full of scruples and good faith; they are trying to build for the future. But will their pyramid prove only to be a cenotaph to the memory of vain ambitions?

Perhaps modern events have an advantage over ancient times; the peoples of the world know and understand each other better today because of the annihilation by modern science of the problem of distance.

course, one or the other must be approximately known or assumed. The law is that the squares of the times of revolution are proportional to the cubes of the distances.

Now, there is another law, known as Roche's limit, which tells us the minimum distance at which a satellite could be formed without being scattered by the tidal strains produced by the gravitation of the planet around which it revolved. This limit is a distance equal to 2.44 times the radius of the planet. In the case of the earth, the limiting distance would be about 9,760 miles from the earth's centre, or, say, 3,760 miles from the surface. That would be about the distance from California to Japan.

If the distance of the satellite from the earth's centre was about 10,000 miles, or 6,563 miles from the surface, it would be safely outside Roche's limit, and its period of revolution around the earth would be about six hours, instead of over twenty-seven days, like the moon.

But, the probability is that any satellites of that kind that the earth may possess are rather of meteoric dimensions, the largest of them being measurable in terms of feet instead of miles. They would, then, only be glimpsed with very powerful telescopes. But one as much as 528 feet in diameter, distant 6,000 miles, would present a disk over three seconds of arc across, which when well illuminated by sunlight, would be easily visible with a small telescopic power.

Even if only satellites a foot or less in diameter were found, the discovery would be well worth while. They might make up in number for their individual insignificance, and a belt of meteoric bodies circulating over the earth's equator, somewhat in the fashion of Saturn's rings, might have an unguessed importance.

SEEN AND HEARD

BELLISLE project to "make a Palm Beach of New England" recalls that this section has a Belle Isle of its own. The island so named is at Little Harbor, N. H., and has just been purchased by MRS. WOODBURY LANGDON widow of the Granite State millionaire, who presented the white deer herd to the Franklin Park Zoo. Island is connected with mainland by a bridge made of material once part of the famous suspension bridge at Niagara Falls.

Many passersby pause to talk of the "money wizard" smilingly as they read the sign on the closed front of the former banking institution on Washington street in which CHARLES PONZI put a large portion of his millions. Sign reads: "Revolving door for sale in good order." One man was heard to remark, a la Duckstader, "He walked right in, he turned around, and he walked right out again!"

One thousand one hundred and sixty-eight miles is a long distance to motor (this being the distance between Danville, Ky., and Boston, Mass.) and then have an accident. This is what happened to a party of Centre College supporters, who drove all the way from Ol' Kentucky to cheer for Centre, who vanquished Harvard, to repeat.

The old West Roxbuton Baptist Church, founded in 1768, which never had in its whole history more than fifty members, gave to the country nine soldiers in the War of the Revolution, sixteen soldiers in the War of 1812, thirty-one soldiers in the Civil War, three soldiers in the World War, 164 school teachers it gave to education, twenty-six ministers and six ministers' wives to the cause of religion.

When ANNE WHITNEY designed the statue of SAMUEL ADAMS in Adams square it is doubtful if she foresaw it would be allowed to fall into the state of neglect which marks it today. The wreath of faded ribbon at its base only serves to call attention to the action of atmosphere upon he metal.

"PEE-WEE" MILLINER, who weighs 275 pounds, and who plays one of the guard positions on the Cambridge Post, Americus League, football team, has no fear of the number THIRTEEN. For be it known that "Pee-Wee" was born on Friday the Thirteenth and at 1:30 a.m. When they gave Milliner No. "13" to sew on the back of his jersey, "Pee-Wee" simply smiled.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON EARTH'S ATTENDANTS

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE legend has long persisted that the earth has another moon, undetected by astronomers because it keeps itself shielded in the earth's shadow, where, like a dark lantern, giving no light, it lurks unseen in the night.

We need not attach any importance to this legend; but, nevertheless, it is possible that our planet actually is attended by small satellite bodies that have never been definitely observed as such, while the only records relating to them are a few observations of suspicious-looking black objects transiting the disk of the sun, as if dodging, one might say, round a conspicuous but unavoidable corner.

Attention is called to this subject by the project, to which I have before referred, for the erection of a telescope at a high elevation in the Andes, exactly on the line of the equator. The proponent of this project is James H. Worthington, and among the particular objects for the detection and study of which he thinks a telescope so placed would be especially suited are just these supposititious satellites.

If they were only a few thousand miles "from the earth they could not be seen from high latitudes north or south of the equator, while an observer situated on the equator would have them passing overhead at their nearest possible approach.

It is assumed that they cannot be large bodies (if they exist at all), and, also, that they change their places swiftly. In order that their orbital motion should be rapid, as compared with that of the moon, they must necessarily be quite close to the earth. It is easy by Kepler's third law of planetary motion to either calculate their distances from their periods of revolution or their periods from their distances. Of

You Don't Often See a Man with His Arm in a Sling Because He Grabbed the Check

The police in most big cities are rapidly getting rid of purse snatchers, but so far they haven't had to call out the militia to run down people who grab for the check in restaurants.

You don't very often see a man with his arm in a sling because he tried to beat you to the check.

Of course he grabs for it but not until after you've got a good grip on it.

A lot of these guys never order dessert until they know for sure you're going to pay for the meal.

The question of paying the check should be settled in advance so that the guy who doesn't have to pay can order what he wants.

He doesn't care much about nature but he always finds plenty of interesting things to look at out of the window while the waiter is busy with the pencil and paper.

If the waiter sets the check down in front of him, he opens the window and lets the draft blow it over to you.

It's an ill wind that won't blow the other guy the check.

Of course even after you do succeed in the fierce, battle of getting the check away from your guest he always wants to pay it and tells you so, almost so loud that you can hear him.

He knows that if he can fumble long enough, you'll pay it.

It isn't a question any more of who's the best sport. It's who's the best fumbler.

The cheapest guy in the world is the bird who invites you to lunch and then shakes you for the check with loaded dice.

However, he leaves a quarter for the waiter and then while you're not looking he picks it up and puts it back in his pocket.

He also puts his overcoat on backward so that while he's fixing it, it will give you plenty of time to tip the hat check boy.

Money means nothing to him because he never has to spend any.

Money rolls from him like molasses off a sponge.

One of these guys was eating in a restaurant where they punch the amount of your meal. He was so nervous he put the end of the check in his mouth and when he got us he discovered he'd chewed twenty-five cents off.

But you never find a guy like this eating in the automat. He isn't going to wear out his thumbs and use his own nickels besides.
